BIG GAIN IN NEBRASKA.

Sedgewick for Supreme Court Judge Beats the Plurality of Two Years Ago by 25,000.

LINCOLN, NEB., Nov. 7.—Returns complete from 61 of the 90 counties in the state give Sedgewick, Republican, for supreme judge, 60,948; Hollenbeck, fusion, 60,338.

Nearly complete returns from 22 other counties make Sedgewick's plurality 11,120. The remaining seven counties will not materially change these figures. Of the three legislative vacancies, one senator and two assemblymen, the Republicans elected all. J. N. Paul, Republican, is elected district judge in the Eleventh district to fill a vacancy.

Based on the vote for supreme court justice, the Republican gain in Nebraska, compared with two years ago, is about 25,000.

FLINN'S EFFORT FOR NEW POWER

With Him as Sponsor, J. O. Brown Tries to Get Recorder's Place

EX-CHIEF'S MISSION TO THE QUAKER CITY

Seeks the Support of Penrose and Durham for His Glowing Ambition.

HIS LATEST EFFORTS DOOMED TO FAILURE

Loyalty to the State Organization of Former Insurgent Leader Too Recent to Justify Reinstating Him in the Local Leadership.

BY CHESTER D. POTTER,
Staff Correspondent.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., Nov. 7.—Chairman J. O. Brown of Pittsburgh visited Gen. Frank Reeder, Republican state chairman, at headquarters today. His mission, it is understood, was to enlist the support of stalwart leaders here in the effort to have Gov. Stone remove from office Maj. A. M. Brown, recorder of Pittsburgh.

Chairman Brown is ambitious to fill the position himself. Senator William Flinn is his chief sponsor. Flinn wants the governor to place him again in power. With his former director of the department of public safety in the position of chief executive, the senator would again hold the destiny of the municipality in the hollow of his hand.

But these things Chairman Brown did not discuss with Gen. Reeder. He merely wanted the "glad hand" and an opportunity of telling the general that the "organization," for the first time in six years, had been loyal to the state ticket. He wanted credit. It was given. The state chairman feels very kindly to all who worked for Republican success, but with him the stalwarts come first, afterward, he might entertain the suggestion of a fatted calf for prodigal sons.

Sought Penrose and Durham.

It was, however, Senator Penrose and Commissioner Durham that Chairman Brown was looking for. He desires them to urge Gov. Stone to make him recorder. Durham has gone away for a few days' rest, but Brown secured his address. It is not known if he saw Senator Penrose.

On the highest authority I am able to say Chairman Brown will receive no encouragement from the friends and advisers of Gov. Stone in his effort to have Major Brown removed from office. Senators Quay and Penrose are opposed to any change in the present administration of the city of Pittsburgh. So is Attorney General John P. Elkin, and so is, most emphatically, Insurance Commissioner Israel W. Durham. If Gov. Stone removes the recorder he will do so despite the protests of those named. None of them wish Senator Flinn restored to power in Allegheny county.

They have no particular grievance, so far as J. O. Brown is concerned; but they realize that in this, as in all former instances of a political nature, Brown is the figurehead, Flinn the actuality. For six years Flinn has fought the state administration. At heart he is opposed to it now. Only when stripped of power and forced to the wall, did he become "regular." His loyalty in the campaign just closed was compulsory. He had nothing to lose and a chance to gain by again donning the blue.

Flinn's Conversion Too Recent.

Until election day the leaders did not know for a certainty if Flinn was really for Harris and Potter. They discounted his strength and expected to carry the county without him. In their opinion, it made little difference, so far as the general result was concerned, whether Flinn was for or against the ticket. Since losing the payroll, they have not counted his personal influence as a valuable asset. He could drive men to the polls when in power; without it they will not follow. Left untrammeled, the people of Allegheny county constitute a formidable Republican majority. That's why the state ticket received such a magnificent indorsement last Tuesday.

These facts, these conditions, are known to the men whom Senator Flinn now asks to help him regain control. They realize that he would not appeal to them were he not in extremity; that with the patronage again at his disposal he would be dealing again with Wanamaker and Martin in an effort to overthrow the Republican state administration. Against his record, his six years' fight against Senator Quay, two years of which there was a vacancy in the United States senate, the loyalty of Tuesday counts but little. Flinn may remain loyal if he desires, but a long probation, the leaders say, will be necessary to impress upon him the necessity of abiding by primary and caucus decisions and the paramount principle of majority rule.

The Governor's Disclaimer.

Within the past month Gov. Stone has unqualifiedly declared that he was not a party to any arrangement affecting the administration of the city of Pittsburgh directly or indirectly with Senator Flinn. Those who ought to know assert that there has been no "arrangement" made since. This, it should be remembered, brings the governor's declaration into the period following the celebrated conference at Atlantic City when the governor refused to accede to Flinn's request to remove Recorder Brown. It is unquestionably true that at that time the governor felt that he should have been consulted before the wholesale removals were made. On this subject there were some misunderstandings, but I am told they have been cleared away.

It must also be understood that not only are the state leaders opposed to the political habilitation of Flinn, but the county chairmen, the rank and file of the regulars, if consulted, would strenuously resist such a proposition. Especially does this hold good in western counties, particularly those adjacent or contiguous to Allegheny. In them the spirit of party revolt was introduced, fostered by Flinn, resulting in costly fights and sometimes defeat of local candidates.

Regulars will not stand for Flinn in Armstrong, Westmoreland, Fayette, Washington, Crawford, Mercer, Lawrence, Beaver, Blair and Cambria counties. He has been their bitterest foe for years. Even in the fight just closed Flinn did not raise a finger to help the state ticket, outside of Allegheny county.

FORMER PRESIDENT AND MRS. GROVER CLEVELAND.

MRS. CLEVELAND WON ALL HEARTS

DEEP ADMIRATION FOR CHARMING GUEST OF HONOR.

Ovation at the Orchestra Concert Closed a Busy Day—No Private Entertainments Were Given in Her Honor, but Many Counted Themselves Fortunate in Meeting Her Informally at Carnegie Institute.

No more gracious woman than Mrs. Cleveland ever visited Pittsburgh. Men, women and children alike lost their hearts to her. Her personality, her dignity and her cordiality were the open sesame to the loyalty and admiration of Pittsburgh people.

The climax of a day that will be memorable in the history of Pittsburgh and the Carnegie Institute was reached last evening when the opening concert of the Pittsburgh orchestra was given in Carnegie music hall. Every seat was occupied and many were standing in the rear of the balconies when the distinguished guests of the day entered the upper right hand box.

Mrs. Cleveland was the first to enter. Mrs. William Nimick Frew and ex-President Cleveland followed. The audience was awaiting their arrival, and bursts of applause swept through the house. The welcome so generously accorded them was acknowledged by Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland. Occupying the box with them were Mr. and Mrs. Frew, Miss Hegeman, Henry Kirk Porter and John W. Alexander.

The music hall was filled with a brilliant gathering of men and women last evening. But two of the boxes were occupied, the Clevelands sitting in the upper right hand box, while the upper box on the left was occupied by a family party, John B. Finley of the Hotel Schenley having secured it for the season of concerts.

The center of interest throughout the evening was the Cleveland party. Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland sat at the extreme left. Mrs. Frew was at the extreme right and Miss Hegeman sat between her and Mrs. Cleveland. Mrs. Cleveland wore a stately gown of white satin, trimmed with white chiffon, the bodice high at the neck and with elbow sleeves meeting the long white gloves. In her simply parted dark hair was a knot of tulle. Miss Hegeman wore a handsome gown of black lace and jet and Mrs. Frew was in white lace over silk, and wore a black ostrich tip in her hair.

At the express desire of Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland no private entertainments were given in their honor. However, throughout the day opportunities were given for a few people to meet them informally.

In Carnegie music hall yesterday morning Mr. and Mrs. John Caldwell received Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland and were their guides through the institute, assisted by John W. Beatty, director of the art galleries, and Dr. William Holland, director of the museum. Mrs. Caldwell accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland in the short drive through the park. Returning to the Schenley lunch was served in the private apartments.

Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland were joined at luncheon by Mr. and Mrs. William Frew, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jefferson, the latter being close neighbors and old friends of the Clevelands at Buzzard's Bay, Samuel Harden Church, John W. Alexander, and Robert W. Allan.

Mrs. Cleveland was delighted with Pittsburgh and was agreeably impressed with the natural beauty of the residence portion of the city and its parks. She more than once expressed her pleasure in the visit to Pittsburgh at this time.

She was generous in her praise of the Pittsburgh orchestra. Her delight in the pictures in the art galleries was very evident, and she called attention to several that were especially pleasing in color and treatment, admiring especially Abbey's famous painting, "The Penance of Eleanor."

There was but little interval for rest during the day, but in the afternoon Mrs. Cleveland snatched a few minutes to call on a friend, Mrs. Hitchcock, in Colonial Place.

At the reception in the art galleries several hundred people were presented to Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland.

Mrs. Cleveland had changed her early morning traveling gown, a gray tailor suit with rich black furs, for a beautiful reception gown of black chiffon and net, the triple skirt edged with narrow black ribbon and the bodice trimmed with finely tucked chiffon, the same forming the sleeves. With it she wore a large graceful black hat covered with long black ostrich plumes.

At 6:30 dinner was served in their private dining room, where Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland were again joined by Mr. and Mrs. Frew and by Dr. and Mrs. William J. Holland, Miss Hegeman and Henry Kirk Porter.

DIED FOR HER HUSBAND.

Chicago Woman Burned to Death While Trying to Rescue Her Husband.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—Mrs. Julius Yankee was burned to death and her husband seriously injured in a fire which badly damaged their home here to-day.

Yankee, who lived on the top floor of the building with his wife, was boiling tar in a pot on the stove. The tar ran over and down upon the floor igniting the woodwork and setting fire to Yankee's clothing. In her efforts to aid her husband Mrs. Yankee was enveloped in flames and when found by the neighbors was beyond aid.

Former President Grover Cleveland Makes a Masterly Address on the Obligations of National Co-Partnership.

HUNDREDS COULD NOT GET INSIDE THE HALL

The Aisles and Even the Corridors Were Crowded Long Before the Exercises Were Begun—Marked Absence of Disorder Added to the Pleasure of the Day—Joseph Jefferson, John W. Alexander and Robert W. Allan Warmly Greeted.

The most notable celebration of Founder's day in the six years' existence of the Carnegie Institute has come and gone. The presence of distinguished men, the delivery of significant addresses, the opening of the international art exhibition, all served to make it an occasion long to be remembered.

Andrew Carnegie, in a letter read during the exercises, pledges himself to still further improvements than those already contemplated, should they be needed. He adds the hope that they may be.

Grover Cleveland, the only living ex-president of the United States and his wife were the guests of honor. Mr. Cleveland delivered one of the most masterly addresses ever heard from the rostrum.

The veteran actor, Joseph Jefferson, again assisted in a Founder's day celebration after an absence of two years. He stepped even more firmly, if possible, into the hearts of his hearers. Noted artists, Robert W. Allan of London and John W. Alexander of New York graced the occasion with their presence and by word of mouth.

The most familiar figure at Founder's day celebrations in the past, with the possible exception of the president and secretary of the board of trustees, was absent yesterday, Frederic Archer, city organist, who was to have played the great organ.

The increased interest in Founder's day year by year was again proved yesterday. With but 3,000 invitations issued as against 4,000 last year, the music hall was crowded to its utmost capacity, and hundreds holding tickets clamored for admission. Shortly after noon the crowd began to gather. People holding reserved seat coupons were seated as rapidly as possible, but they arrived in such numbers that all the aisles were congested when 2 o'clock, the opening hour, came.

Crowded in the Aisles.

Every seat in the hall was occupied. On the lower floor people crowded half way down the aisles, and were finally held in check by policemen. The corridor was crowded, and the aisle doors were left open to permit those outside to hear. Up stairs, people, unrestrained, crowded down the aisles until both the balconies presented a solid mass of humanity from side to side.

It was an audience of Pittsburgh's most representative people. The sight was brilliant in the extreme, the glittering costumes of the women and immaculate dress of the men showing in striking contrast.

The only decoration in the hall was on the stage. From box to box, and reaching up to the lower pipes of the organ, magnificent palms formed a splendid background, showing up strongly against the white and gold decorations of the walls. A double row of chairs stretched along immediately in front of the palms, and again in front of them were the speakers' seats. On the left front of the stage stood a vase filled with a huge cluster of magnificent white chrysanthemums.

The seats on the stage were reserved for the trustees of the institute and the invited guests. These latter comprised city and county officials, judges of the county and federal courts and former trustees of the institute. It was a gathering of the most prominent men in the city. All these seats were filled before 2 o'clock, and then the audience became expectant, watching a narrow passageway through the bank of palms that betrayed where the speakers would enter.

Suddenly a burst of applause startled inattentive people. It took half the audience some seconds to realize what was happening. When they did the applause was redoubled. Mrs. Cleveland had entered the lower right hand box and quietly seated herself, but not quietly enough to escape the watchful eyes of her many admirers. She was given a great ovation.

In a short time another outburst of applause shook the building. The speakers, headed by the Rev. Thomas N. Boyle, D. D., entered and took their seats.

As each man appeared the applause, if possibly increased, and the ovation lasted for several minutes.

Hardly had the last echo of the applause died away when a magnificent strain of melody seemed to spring from the organ and fill the whole hall. Edward J. Napier, a son-in-law of the much lamented city organist, at Mr. Archer's request and the wish of the trustees, was presiding at the organ. He was playing a Baptiste "Offertoire" in D minor.

When the last strains of music had sunk away President Frew introduced the Rev. Dr. Boyle, who delivered the invocation. Then came the speech of the afternoon, when Mr. Cleveland was presented. Following the former president Mr. Frew delivered a fine tribute to the late president, William McKinley. Every person appreciated the tribute, the more so as it was unexpected.

Before Col. Church started to read his report of the year's work of the institute he read a letter from Andrew Carnegie to Mr. Frew in which the giver of libraries pledges himself to further extension of the institute if it is needed. When the significance of the remark became apparent to the audience the absent philanthropist was given a great ovation.

It is seldom that so large a hall can be crowded to its fullest extent with people and still avoid confusion. Yet all yesterday afternoon the most perfect quiet pervaded the hall save when the various speakers made cause for pronounced approval. The audience hardly seemed to breathe, and every speaker was heard with the most interested respect and attention.

After Mr. Jefferson's speech, President Frew announced the awards of the international art jury, and invited the audience to attend the reception held by Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland in the art gallery immediately after the close of the exercises. The program was closed with another number, Herold's "Zampa" overture, magnificently played by Mr. Napier.

After the exercises the audience filed slowly out certain doors and were guided through the building, finally coming to the reception in the art gallery, and then passing out into the street again.

Police arrangements for handling the great crowd were as nearly perfect as possible. Inspector Henry Whitehouse, Capt. Grant Smith and Lieuts. Robert Holmes and Edward McPoland were in charge of 40 officers, while Supt. Col. Coulson of the bureau of detectives was on hand with a number of his men. The crowd was handed admirably.

CLEVELAND MAKES INSTITUTE HIS TEXT

He Draws from It a Lesson on "The Obligations of National Co-Partnership"

Great interest centered in the address of the former president of the United States. His subject, "The Obligations of National Co-Partnership" was of itself sufficient to make it looked forward to and its delivery more than justified the anticipation. In introducing Mr. Cleveland Mr. Frew said:

Of the noted men who lend interest to this annual occasion by their presence, none will be listened to more intently than the former president of the United States, who is now the guest of this institution. Distinguished in his administration of public office, rightly designated a public trust, distinguished long since in the domain of letters by his retirement, he has set an example of which the people have every reason to feel proud. I esteem it a high privilege to introduce to you the Hon. Grover Cleveland.

Mr. Cleveland was received with even a greater ovation than upon his entrance to the hall. He stood impassive, waiting for the applause to die away, betraying only by the twinkle of his eyes and the shadow of a smile, his appreciation of the reception. Suddenly the great crowd became silent, and immediately Mr. Cleveland began his address.

When I yielded to the personalive request of the founder of the Carnegie Institute and consented to appear before you and address you, I waived a resolution I had deliberately made to do all I could by resisting such persuasion to bring about my retirement from service as a speaker on occasions like this. I found it impossible to escape the conviction that something had been done in this city by your founder, which deserved such public notice, and such disinterested public spirit, that no good citizen should refuse to respond when called on to testify in recognition and appreciation of his achievement.

An Impressive Exhibition.

A most impressive exhibition is here laid, before us of the immense accomplishments of patient, persistent work and intelligent industrial enterprise; and by their side are seen splendid evidences of the free dedication of millions of the wealth gained as a reward of such work and enterprise to the education, the improvement and the elevation of the people without distinction or discrimination.

The real impressiveness of this exhibition, however, consists in the fact that the hands and brain and heart of one man have done substantially all this—these demonstrations of surely in this land of ours, the greatest material success in business follows industry and resolute effort, and at the same time suggesting that such success and the accumulation or possession of a large fortune create obligations of beneficence which ought to be neither forgotten nor neglected.

In point of fact the career of Andrew Carnegie and what he has done for himself and given for others, constitute a most valuable object lesson illustrating all the opportunities our country presents to others, the inevitability of well-directed endeavor, and the meaning of American good-citizenship.

The mention of the obligations which are suggested by these surroundings as growing out of the possession of wealth, and the reference which has been made to the relationship between a discharge of these obligations and good citizenship, should not for a moment obscure the consciousness that if the American people are to preserve in their greatest usefulness the advantages of their free institutions, every individual, whatever may be his station or situation, owes some sort of duty and obligation in support of good citizenship—the lawful and honest discharge of which constitutes in its best sense American co-operation.

Reciprocity of Duty.

This means a reciprocity of duty among our citizens who have a common ownership in national benefits, and whose welfare is a partnership in national blessings broad enough and large enough to include all the people of the land. Success in a business partnership requires that each member shall contribute his full share of labor or capital to the common good, and that he shall limit his participation in profits by a just and equitable rule, and it

Hint of Further Great Gift in Andrew Carnegie's Greeting

SKIBO CASTLE, ARDGAY, N. B., October 14, 1901.

My Dear Mr. President—Yours of October 2 gives me unusual pleasure. It seems that the institute has not yet reached its zenith, every year it rises higher and higher.

You tell me that this year you have the greatest exhibition of paintings which you have ever had, while I hear everywhere praises of the exceptionally high standard of admission which the Pittsburgh institute has fixed.

I have one of the rarest of pleasures in knowing that ex-President Cleveland and his dear wife are to be present upon Founder's day, he as the orator of the occasion. I know how Pittsburgh will be pleased with him, and also know that like other distinguished visitors they will be pleased with Pittsburgh. Some men are great in office; some men are great whether in or out of office, and you all know to which class your orator today belongs. As for his companion, I dare not trust myself to speak of her.

Permit me in closing to congratulate Pittsburgh upon the fact that the necessary ground has been secured for the needed additions to the institute, so that the trustees can now press forward their completion.

By the time the new area is fairly brought into use I doubt not but that another extension will be necessary. Such at least is my hope, for of all the undertakings which I have aided I know of no one which is producing a more bountiful harvest of precious fruit than that over which you so ably preside.

Always very truly yours, ANDREW CARNEGIE.

W. N. Frew, Esq., President of the Board of Trustees, Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh.

requires none the less, that these things shall be done cheerfully and contentedly. The interests of the associates may be different in character or degree, but those entitled to one kind or grade of advantages fail in duty if they disturb harmonious operation by unjustifiable discontent or by envy of those whose shares they consider as more profitably adjusted.

So also those holding different and perhaps more influential interests have no right to ravenously seize as much of the partnership assets as may be within their reach, utterly reckless of what is due from them to the humblest of their co-partners. Such conduct as this in a business association would inevitably lead to disastrous contention, fatal quarrels, and disgraceful failure.

The application of these considerations to the grand partnership of American citizenship is neither fanciful nor sentimental. We have a country favored of God since its beginning—limitless in its opportunities for individual and national prosperity, and ready to yield at all times adequate returns to labor and enterprise.

The Fund of Advantages.

These constitute the fund of advantages in which, under a guaranty of freedom of suffrage and the equality of manhood, every citizen is entitled to share. Can there be any doubt of the supreme importance of maintaining and strengthening this fund, as the source from which happiness and thrift in increasing volume may be distributed throughout the land? Certainly not, if there is any truth in the things that make us a great and prosperous nation.

Can we, then, by indifference and neglect, by grudging and querulous support or by unfair appropriation, permit the partnership fund to fall short of its beneficent purposes? No American citizen can escape his share of responsibility for the safe solution of this momentous question, whatever may be his situation and interest in our national partnership. Differences in individual condition must always exist under every phase of civilized government, and though we constantly congratulate ourselves that our scheme of free democratic rule does not allow different sections of our people to be perpetually confined within impenetrable and unyielding class limits, yet the gradations of individual situation among us are distinctly marked.

Indeed, I think it must be admitted that with our restless freedom from all hindrances to personal aspiration and effort, and with their rewards plainly in sight to stimulate the struggle for their attainment, our people exhibit a greater number and variety of gradations in social life and material surroundings than is elsewhere found.

Duty and Responsibility.

It may be that this increases the difficulty in many cases of accurately weighing duty and responsibility; and it is quite likely that struggles for higher and more commanding places in our national association may enlarge selfish desires and plans and tend to a forgetfulness of obligation to our associates and the common fund. However this may be, nothing can be more indisputable than the proposition that whatever obstacles and temptations may lie in his path, no member of the partnership of American citizenship can be true to his country and his associates, or can anticipate the best and most lasting results of his efforts for advancement, unless he maintains a loyal stand for the harmony and unity of the grudgingly labors for its success—accepting, on the one hand, without envy or malice towards others, the advantages justly and fairly bestowed by the operation of the law, and, on the other hand, scrupulously resisting every temptation to ignore or override the concessions due to the least conspicuous of his co-partners.

The most serious peril to that evil that disturbs co-operation among our people is found in the contentions and quarrels between employers and the employed. I shall not attempt to discuss the different phases of this delicate subject. It seems to me, however, that it ought not to be either delicate or troublesome, and that it has only been made so by the distorted perspective in which it is seen and by the resentful feelings which have grown out of a disregard of the restraints of American co-operation.

Relation of Labor and Capital.

Surely, as an original proposition, there should be no antagonism in this country between labor and capital. On the contrary, they should be in close alliance and friendship.

Our institutions forbid that an explanation of such antagonism should be found in class jealousy and hatred. No American citizen is every yet ushered by birth to a life of labor or poverty; and fortunes are the product of industry and intelligent endeavor. Labor and capital touch and mingle so constantly and intimately among us that the laborer of today is frequently the employer of labor tomorrow. They should always supplement each other as the warm rain supplements the fertile soil, to produce in solid contribution an abundant store of the riches of nature.

Nor can the most consuming desire for happiness excuse contentious envy of capitalistic wealth; for it is beyond reasonable dispute that the bulk of happiness among the American people is found on a plane of our social life far below that occupied by the rich. The cares and anxieties of the occupation of money getting and money keeping, and the strangling of genuine pleasure, which is so often its result, certainly ought not to excite the envy of the man who contentedly works with his hands, and who by an immutable fiat may find in his work the way to real, simple, unperverted happiness.

From toil he wins his spirit's light,
From toil he wins the peaceful night;
Rich, from the very want of wealth,
In heaven's best treasures, peace and health.

Things That Must Not Be.

While healthful and normal conditions of national partnership forbid envy and unfriendliness on the part of the employed toward employing capital, so also do such conditions most emphatically forbid the grinding selfishness, the greedy rapacity and supercilious haughtiness which too often characterizes the treatment of the employed by capital.

I shall not, however, enlarge upon any of the aspects which the so-called labor problem presents in these latter days; and I desire distinctly to disclaim any intention to suggest what may be the cause or cause of the dislocation which unfortunately so frequently occurs in the relationship of labor to capital. Whether it results from unreasonable and irritating demands on the part of labor, or whether our workingmen listen too credulously to malign counsels, or whether again the trouble arises from the greed and avarice of capital and of its immense aggregations, I do not pretend to say. Perhaps all these have a share in creating the difficulty.

It is sufficient for my present purpose to point out that there is antagonism in this relationship where there should be a generous unity of purpose. In other words, the situation itself proves that somewhere there are members of our partnership in American citizenship who act in violation of partnership duty; and I am sure that I venture nothing in making the assertion that the only remedy for this situation must be found in a return to the observances of the law of American co-operation.

Where the Start Must Be.

This return will not be accomplished by nursing real or imaginary injuries on the part of labor, nor by lordly and selfish arrogance on the part of capital. A beginning may be made in the conspicuous examples of a recognition of the duty and obligations which are the conditions upon which the full enjoyment of our partnership advantages depend. These examples should include comprehensive and tolerant concessions; they should be prominently recognized and appreciated, and constantly pressed upon the view of all who may be remiss in their obligations to American co-operation—whatever the scope and nature of these obligations may be.

An example such as I have mentioned, is seen in the establishment and expansion of the Carnegie Institute. From a great fortune acquired through the use of American opportunity, a munificent return has been made to those interested in the fund of our American partnership in voluntary and cheerful acknowledgement of partnership duty. Without suggestion of enervating or repelling charity the doors of a fully equipped library are thrown open wherein all who will can find without cost ample means of education and information.

All Tastes Considered.

A large and constantly growing museum freely offers most valuable assistance to the student of natural history and its allied subjects. Exhibitions of paintings not excelled in number and merit by any collections in our country supply free facilities for refining enjoyment and for the improvement and stimulation of artistic taste and judgment. The lovers of music find abundant opportunity here to listen to an orchestra whose fame equals any in the land. And the end is not yet; for it is in the air that all of it is to be supplemented by a school where will be freely taught everything that is needful to a useful and thrifty life.

Those things constitute a monument more enduring than brass. They commemorate not only a discharge of the highest duty but point the way to the creation of such unification of American effort as will most develop the most sincere patriotism. Those who love their country cannot do otherwise than fervently hope that the example here exhibited may not only incite others to its likewise, but may accomplish its rare rewards dispelling misconception, distrust and suspicion on the part of any within a immediate influence who have allowed the motives to regard great wealth as inevitably an unwholesome element in our body politic.

It is interesting to observe how well the work of the founder of the noble benefaction has been seconded by the authorities of your municipality and her public spirited citizens. This is shown by the liberal and constantly increasing appropriations for the maintenance of the institute and by the willingness and zeal of those who have undertaken its management.

The alchemy of civilization's evolution is full of splendid wonders; but no transmutation will ever be exhibited more startling or more impressive than the creation of the bright jewels of education, art and music from the grimy and noisome fumes of your furnaces; and no gem will ever have a more astonishing setting than the Carnegie Institute in your Smoky City.

TRIBUTE PAID TO MEMORY OF M'KINLEY

Mr. Frew Sees in Popular Education a Remedy for Anarchy and Its Crimes.

At the conclusion of Mr. Cleveland's address President Frew stepped forward, apparently to introduce the next speaker. Instead, he spoke himself, delivering a touching tribute to the late president, William McKinley. Mr. Frew said:

I cannot refrain from recalling, as a most pathetic reminiscence, the fact that four years ago today we had the honor of hearing from this platform one who but two months since ended his earthly existence in the service of the state. Strong, sincere and beautiful in life, sublime in the hour of death, with malice toward none, he composed himself peacefully for the last great change, and with Christian resignation and softly uttered words of farewell sank to rest.

"Like one who wraps the drapery of his couch
About him and lies down to pleasant dreams."

He has gone to his glorious reward. He has taken his seat with the immortals, and long ere this have fallen upon his enraptured ears those majestic words, "Well done, well done, good and faithful servant."

These hideous deeds, utterly barren of accomplishment, are the outgrowth of ignorance and are conceived by its legitimate offspring, a weak or vicious mind. It would seem that a general panacea for such ills is, fundamentally, the universal diffusion of education.

This being admitted, in the first place, the public school system be extended and the education of children be made compulsory. Let the curriculum import a more thorough and practical knowledge of the history of the nation, the reason and meaning of its institutions. Let systematic and unremitting effort be made to inculcate a spirit of fervid patriotism, a genuine reverence for law and the established order of things, which shall form an integral part of the very nature of the child when he shall have arrived at years of maturity.

Let the philanthropist follow in the steps of the wise, far-sighted and public-spirited founder of this institution by establishing other similar schools of public education. For it is part of the mission of these organizations to teach the conservation of law and order and to stimulate and encourage right doing and right thinking.

While our republican ideas do not sanction a recognition of the divinity that "doth hedge a king," those called to high official station and representing the majesty of the people are certainly entitled to greater respect than in many cases is accorded them. This being so, provide by legislative enactment that the insulting ridicule of, the intemperate partisan attacks upon the person and policy, the acts and opinions of the chief executive, whether by spoken or printed word, or cartoon, be prohibited under penalty. Finally, let the strong, protecting arm of the American people be extended around these men whom we summon to positions of not only great honor, but extreme peril. Then we may hope with reason that never again, never again, shall another such foul blot disfigure the brilliant page of our country's history.

A PROTEST AGAINST THE TARIFF ON ART

John W. Alexander Declares Law Degrades It to a Coal Scuttle Level.

John W. Alexander of New York, the well-known artist whose works have annually found a place in the art exhibit, was the next speaker. In presenting him Mr. Frew said:

It is a pleasure to welcome again to his native city one who has carved out for himself an international reputation in the world of art, and the warmth of our greeting should be a demonstration of the fact that in this case at least, a prophet is not without honor even in his own country. Allow me to present to you Mr. John W. Alexander.

Mr. Alexander was enthusiastically greeted by the audience, many of whom have been his personal friends for years, and remember his boyhood days in Pittsburgh. He began his speech by an unnecessary apology for his lack of ability as a speaker, but apologized in the humorous vein only possible to the successful public speaker when under the eye of a great audience. After a minute or two of hilarity, during which time Mr. Alexander told a story that raised a hearty laugh, he turned to the serious side of his address on "Our Tariff on Art." Mr. Alexander said:

Art is the beautiful setting that holds and displays to advantage the history of all ages—and art often remains when the history of a nation or an individual is forgotten. Take Bonvonuto Cellini for instance; we all know his art, but how many of us in this building know that he was a liar, a thief, a cowardly murderer—and worse. All that has lasted is his art and the public remember him as the sculptor of the Perseus in the piazza in Florence—and artists remember him as the creator of an exquisite little saltcellar in one of the great Europ an museums.

In all time, as far as we know, there has existed a yearning for art in all peoples. This is plainly shown by their first crude efforts at personal adornment and the ornamentation of their belongings, in their striving to perpetuate, to explain, both in painting and sculpture, the beauty they feel they have discovered.

From the earliest ages, as a relief from solitude and from the commonplace, man has resorted to searching for a means to make plain to his fellows the joy he feels in the beauty he finds in nature.

In European countries this yearning toward artistic expression has long been recognized as of permanent value to the people, and art has been protected, fostered and dignified as an important means of education.

Over here we have been too busy building up the permanence and prosperity of a new nation to pay the same attention, and yet it was intelligent interest, appreciation and confidence in the artist and his ability that made it possible for the old masters to bring their art to its astounding perfection.

Patronage and the Masters.

In the days when the great masters flourished governments and princes considered art as worthy of at least a part of their attention. A prince of the house of Medecio disputed with the pope for the services of Michael Angelo. Velasquez had his Philip IV., Titian was patronized by all the great men of his time. Rubens was chosen by his government as their ambassador to Spain and Van Dyck was pensioned by an English king.

In Europe today this liberal encouragement of the fine arts still continue. In all the great cities the masterpieces of painting, sculpture and applied art have been gathered together in museums and are at the service of the public, and it is the fact that these collections exist, collections which we can never hope to rival, that make it almost necessary for the American art student to spend a period of study abroad.

Does it not seem short-sighted on the part of our government to place an almost prohibitive tariff on what is really the foundation stone of all the art of today? The value of their accumulated treasures of art is so appreciated by the countries that own them that it will be impossible for us ever to establish over here wholly adequate collections of the work of the earlier schools.

Obstacles to Purchase.

Now and then, from private sources, a masterpiece can be secured, but the foreign museums are loath to let anything really valuable slip through their fingers, and the American purchaser, after competing with and outbidding them, must, in addition to an excessive price, pay the additional tax of 60 per cent before he can bring into this country his old master, his piece of sculpture or his object of art.

Italy, knowing well the value of her masterpieces give to her as a nation, has passed a law making it a penal offence to export works of art executed before a fixed date. We, on the other hand, have framed laws to tax the bringing in of such objects.

The glory of the English pavilion at the last Paris exhibition, was undoubtedly a superb collection of English eighteenth century portraits. Those were lent by their American owner, who does not bring them over to enrich our country because of the enormous duties he would have to pay on them.

Surely this taxing of the few attainable masterpieces only helps to place obstacles in the way of the American art student attaining eminence in his profession. Although we cannot hope, even in time and with a more liberal policy in regard to the taxation of works of art, to form really adequate collections of old masters, there still remains to us the possibility of forming great collections of modern work and through these to become the modern art center of the world.

Americans in the Front Rank.

In spite of innumerable disadvantages American artists stand in the front rank of the art of today. This is no longer questioned abroad, but in order to attain this high position they have been forced to go to Europe for inspiration. Not because our schools are in any respect inferior to the foreign ones, but because in Paris, each spring, the two great exhibitions have made it possible to study, not only the work of Frenchmen, but the first work of all countries, including America.

Over here in Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Chicago and a few other cities, the same thing has been attempted on a smaller scale, but in order to secure the works of foreign painters, much time and money has to be spent in conforming with the irksome regulations required by our custom departments.

To claim this tariff protects the American artist from foreign competition is to degrade art to the level of coal shuttles and patent medicines. No man has ever succeeded in art whose work has not been individual and does not contain something that no other painter has been able to express before—therefore he is his own protection. The true artist does not need protection and does not want it. The more pictures he can see, the more suggestions he will have for his own work, and anything that aids him to see the work of others must be an advantage to him.

WORDS OF PRAISE BY AN ENGLISH ARTIST

Robert W. Allan Styles Pittsburgh the Center of Art in the United States.

Robert W. Allan of London was the next speaker. Mr. Allan was a member of the international jury of award this year, and has works of his own hanging on the walls of the art gallery here. In introducing him, Mr. Frew said:

Mr. Allan has been honored in being selected by the ballots of the painters of the world to pass on the merits of their work sent to this city in competition. May we not hope that when he returns to his home in historic London he will carry with him the pleasant conviction that in addition to the extensive body of admirers of his artistic work, he has left behind him in this country an equally large circle of new-found friends and well-wishers?

Mr. Allan was tendered a cordial reception as he stepped to the front of the platform. He spoke with an accent half English, half Scotch and in a low pleasant voice. He said:

When I was asked to say a few words on the occasion of Founder's day, I hesitated, because I was very doubtful about being able to say much that would be of interest, besides I was not sure whether I might be able to address so large and distinguished an audience, and under the circumstances you will be glad to learn that I won't detain you very long.

Having the honor of representing Britain on the jury for the present year, I am in a position to say with confidence that the exhibition which you are about to see for yourselves is a show of unique excellence. Without mentioning names, I may say you will see for yourselves a collection of modern pictures which represent an unusually high standard, and one seldom reached any where. It embraces much that is being done at present in the art world.

I feel I would be failing in a very pleasant duty were I not to congratulate you heartily on possessing such a splendid institute, which is due to the benevolence and generosity of your townsman, Mr. Carnegie, whom I am proud to claim as a "brither Scot." Well may that gentleman feel gratified at the position this institute now occupies, it having become in the estimation of artists the center of art in the United States. To me it is specially gratifying to find in your city so many gentlemen who willingly give up their time to help in the work of this great institution, and when labor of this kind is shown, as I myself can bear witness of, much may yet be accomplished.

I need hardly say how much I have been satisfied with the method by which the pictures are judged and the honors awarded, this being one of the fairest I have ever come across, and I have seen various plans. Artists are like doctors, and therefore differ in their opinions, but your system comes as near perfection as possible, because it gives any unknown artist who possesses talent an opportunity of having his pictures properly seen and fairly judged. No artist can complain that his work has not been placed before the elected jury, and if by some unfortunate circumstance his work is rejected, he can always console himself by saying, "So much for the taste of the jury."

It will always afford me pleasure in thinking of Pittsburgh that it was the first town in America to hold an international exhibition run on such a fine system. Apart from the charming time and kind reception I have had in your interesting country, I have been greatly impressed with the beautiful artistic work that is being done by your own artists.

The other day I had the pleasure of visiting the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo, which interested me greatly, and after much study and thought I came to the conclusion that a country which could produce such a distinguished artist as your late Mr. Inness, not to mention other recent painters, may well feel proud of its position in art.

WARM GREETING TO JOSEPH JEFFERSON

Enthusiastic Applause Marks Introduction of the Veteran Actor.

The next speaker was that dear old man Joseph Jefferson. The high regard in which he is held in Pittsburgh was proven by the thunderous applause that broke out as he stepped forward. Mr. Frew, in introducing Mr. Jefferson, said:

Two years ago we greatly enjoyed a few impromptu remarks made by a gentleman who now occupies a seat on this platform, and,

LOW PRICES ON PIANOS IS AMBUHL BROS.' SUCCESS
Not the Largest, Oldest or Richest House in Town, But the Place You Can Always Get a Good Bargain.

This week is not an exception at Ambuhl Bros., for the array of beautiful pianos of the very best makes, both new and second-hand, and the prices that are asked for them, demonstrate very clearly why this house has gotten such a hold in this vicinity.

No time is spent here telling you how large, old or reliable the firm is, for it is not the firm you are buying, but pianos, and the makes handled here are too well known to need praise by the dealer.

We offer this week a large fine upright piano, of a well known New York make, with a full iron frame, duet music desk, and ivory keys, for $160. It has been used some, but not enough to hurt it, and shows but little trace of wear.

We offer a Kranich & Bach upright that has been used, but is in good order, for $200. This make is a very familiar one in this locality.

We offer one of our beautiful, noble-toned Kimballs, medium size, fine mahogany case, that was sold about one year ago for $425. There is scarcely a mark on it, but the number shows it is second-hand. $290 is the price now.

Another that was used for a time by one of our leading teachers we offer for $240. The tone of this is grand, but the case is scratched a little.

Among our organ bargains is a fine Estey, with two full sets of reeds and sub bass, all in good condition. The price is $30.

We offer a good square piano for $40.

CHINA UNEASY OVER LI'S DEATH

Peking Populace Excited, but No Signs of Mourning Are Shown.

TO BE BURIED WITH HIS ANCESTORS

The Name of Yuan Shi Kai Is Most Prominently Mentioned as the Successor of the Great Viceroy. Insistence of Russian Minister.

PEKING, Nov. 7.—The end of Li Hung Chang, who died here at 11:15 o'clock last night, was quiet. His vitality slowly ebbed. For a time he lost consciousness; but he showed great tenacity, rallied at midnight, became semi-conscious, partook of nourishment and appeared to recognize his relatives.

The foreign doctors left him early yesterday, saying that nothing more could be done. His personal physician, Dr. Witt, then took charge. The controversy between the foreign and Chinese doctors had no effect on the patient, because he was already beyond hope of recovery.

The flames of the procession of paper effigies, chairs and horses burned in the courtyard of the yamen to carry his spirit to heaven told the crowd of officials who were gathered in the narrow street outside the yamen that the end had come. Soon afterward a procession appeared bearing a costly coffin of teak wood, beautifully lacquered. This coffin Li Hung Chang took on his trip around the world and he brought it from Canton when he came to Peking to settle the "Boxer" troubles. Since that time it had been kept in a temple here.

The body will be placed in the coffin tomorrow morning with the customary rites. On Sunday there will be a ceremonial corresponding to a lying-in-state, and all the Chinese officials will pay their respects. A separate day will be designated for the ministers of the powers.

The interment will be at the birthplace of the deceased statesman, a little village in the province of An Hui. The time has not yet been decided upon.

A memorial was telegraphed to the courts announcing his death, and a circular-letter sent to the ministers of the powers. It is announced that when the court received the news an edict was issued bestowing posthumous honors upon the deceased and probably advancing him to the rank of marquis, which title will descend to his eldest son.

The ministers of the powers are personally sending messages of sympathy. The first letter received at the Chinese foreign office came this morning from Mr. Conger, the United States minister, saying that Secretary Hay had instructed him to tender the regrets of President Roosevelt and the United States government at the death of the great viceroy.

The Chinese officials were unable to obtain communication with Prince Ching today. The governor of Peking, the provincial treasurer and the generals commanding the Chinese troops have sent a joint telegram to various points recommending Prince Ching to proceed and join the court in order to present to the court the facts of the situation in Peking before returning to the capital.

There are no signs of mourning in the city, although the populace is considerably excited. The ministers of the powers consider Yuan Shi Kai the strongest man in China after Li Hung Chang, and they think his presence here would have a good influence on the court; but they fear the results of removing him from the province of Shan Tung, the most turbulent province in the empire and the seat of the Boxer movement.

Yuan Shi Kai has controlled the province with an iron hand. The situation there is a particularly delicate one on account of the friction with the Germans, and the substitution of a man with less tact would doubtless mean uprisings and a conflict between the Chinese and Germans.

The death of Li Hung Chang is doubly regretted because he was the only influential Chinaman who could deal with foreign governments with an appreciation of the foreign point of view. Officials attached to Earl Li's household informed the correspondent of the Associated Press today that the Russian minister, M. Paul Lessar, called early in the morning and strenuously endeavored to have the seal of Li Hung Chang attached to the Manchurian convention before he died. It is impossible to verify this statement from other than Chinese sources.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 7.—Minister Wu Ting Fang paid a glowing tribute to China's dead statesman today, saying that his country had suffered a great loss.

Minister Wu was a protege of Li Hung Chang. His friends here fear that in the death of his protector and patron he has been exposed to the attacks of the many enemies in the Chinese court which his liberal policies have created.

Mr. Wu for some time was Earl Li's legal adviser in foreign affairs, and superintended, while acting in that capacity, the construction of the first Chinese railway.

Upon the receipt of the official confirmation of the death of Li Hung Chang from Peking, the Chinese standard floating over the legation in Washington will be half-masted, and there will be other observances incident to such an event.

TREASURER THOMPSON CONFESSES TO BIG DEFALCATION.

Funds Missing Said to Reach the Sum of $57,000—The Defaulter Says That He Took the Money to Aid Him in Business Venture in which He Saw No Chance for Loss—The Order Is Protected.

PORT HURON, MICH., Nov. 7.—By his own written confession, Charles D. Thompson, supreme finance keeper of the supreme tent, Knights of the Maccabees, and a prominent vessel and tug man of this city, is a defaulter in the sum of $57,000. Mr. Thompson, however, was heavily bonded in the National Surety Company of New York and the Fidelity and Deposit Company of Baltimore, and the order, therefore, is protected from loss. Thompson made no effort to escape after his defalcation was discovered. He is now at his home awaiting the action of the bonding company. His embezzlement is confessed in a letter to Supreme Commander D. P. Markey, in which he said that he had taken the money to aid him in a business venture in which he saw no chance of loss.

The first intimation of the shortage came last Tuesday afternoon, when Supreme Commander Markey and Supreme Record Keeper George J. Sigle were checking over finance keeper's books. An error was discovered and they called Thompson's attention to it. He said that he would take the books and papers home with him that night and look it up. Wednesday morning he came to Supreme Commander Markey's office and confessed that his accounts were short $57,000. He then and there signed a written confession of the embezzlement. An examination of the books followed, and the shortage was disclosed.

The companies on Mr. Thompson's bond were notified of the shortage today, and representatives of each are now on their way to Port Huron. It is expected they will arrive either late tonight or tomorrow morning. Thompson is at his home awaiting their arrival and whatever action they may take. He is not under arrest, but says that he expects to be arrested and prosecuted and is prepared to pay the penalty of his breach of trust.

The heavy loss sustained by the Thompson Towing and Wrecking Company of this city, of which Thompson is a member, on the steamer Harlem, which they raised from the bottom of Lake Superior, is responsible for the defalcation. Thompson said this afternoon that he used the funds of the order in this enterprise which proved very unprofitable, as the expense of raising and refitting the craft was so great that she had to be sold at a loss. It is said of $75,000, instead of a profit. It is expected an effort will be made by Thompson's friends to effect a settlement with the bonding companies.

MUTINY AT A KANSAS PRISON

Twenty-Six Dangerous Convicts Are at Large Committing Depredations.

ONE MAN KILLED AND THREE WOUNDED

Desperate Men With Two Revolvers Manage to Get Away from a Guard Fully Armed—Weapons Secreted by Unknown Persons.

LEAVENWORTH, KAN., Nov. 7.—One man was killed, three others dangerously wounded, and 26 desperate convicts are at large, as a result of a mutiny late this afternoon at the site of the new United States prison, two miles southeast of here, where 400 prisoners from the federal prison, in charge of the city armed guards, were at work.

When the trouble began the rebellious prisoners had only two revolvers. These had been secreted in one of the walls of the building by some unknown person. Two walls are partly completed and the remainder of the site of the building is surrounded by a high wooden stockade. Gus Parker of Ardmore, I. T., one of the ringleaders of the mutiny, walked to the corner of the stockade, where the revolvers were concealed and under cover of some weeds, secured them without being detected. He returned to the gang and passd one of the revolvers to Frank Thompson, a negro from South McAlester, I. T., who secreted it about his person.

When T. E. Hinds, superintendent of construction, and three unarmed guards prepared to round up the men at the end of the day's work, the two armed convicts covered them with the revolvers and encouraged by the other mutinous convicts forced the men to walk before them to the northwestern corner of the stockade where they expected to make a rush through the opening.

Outside of the stockade was an armed guard, and the convicts were met at the opening by C. E. Burrows, a guard, who fought them back, but who received two shots in the neck. The convicts then rushed over to the south wall to another opening and were met by Arthur Treelford, an armed guard, who is in charge of all the convicts. Treelford resisted the convicts and was shot twice, but not dangerously wounded. Defeated in their attempt at this point, the men rushed to the guard house, a temporary frame structure, where the arms are kept.

The guards from the outside rushed in at this point and drove the convicts away from the guardhouse. J. P. Waldrupe, a guard, shot and killed Ford Quinn, from Ryan, I. T. The prisoners then made a grand rush for the main entrance and 26 of them succeeded in escaping. Most of the escaped men are from Indian territory. Closely followed by the guards the men ran to a nearby forest and succeeded in evading their pursuers. The men went in the direction of Easton, Kan., and it is reported here that they have held up many farmers, taking horses and clothing.

The convicts in their flight compelled F. E. Hinds, superintendent of construction, to go with them, and he was not allowed to return until they had gone almost two miles. W. F. Peaslee, one of the fugitives, who had only 15 months more to serve, deserted the band a few moments after Superintendent Hinds was released. The two men reached here almost at the same time. They reported that the fugitives, after holding a consultation, decided that they would form themselves into several small parties, so that some might escape though others should be captured. It is the intention of all to attempt to reach the rough country southeast of here.

CHARGED WITH CHILD THEFT

A BUTLER MAN ARRESTED FOR KIDNAPING HIS BABY.

The Court Blamed the Mother-in-Law for the Trouble, and Told Her to Remain Away From the Young Couple, and Leave Them Alone—The Custody of the Infant Was Given Over to the Mother.

(Special to The Pittsburgh Gazette.)

BUTLER, PA., Nov. 7.—A hearing was held this morning in the habeas corpus proceedings instituted by Mrs. Ethel Gold against her husband, Elmer Gold, to recover possession of her baby, which is less than a year old. The couple have been married less than two years, and, according to evidence offered in court, they did not live happily together, and Mrs. Gold finally went to the home of her mother, taking the baby with her. Gold and his mother, Mrs. Miles Gold, went yesterday to the home of Mrs. J. N. Turk, where the baby was, and carried the infant away with them. Mrs. Turk says they stole the baby, but Gold denies this, and alleges that his wife agreed to go along and was to follow the baby to his home in a short time. Mrs. Gold instituted habeas corpus proceedings and had her husband arrested and brought into court.

It developed that the couple got along agreeable when left alone in their own home, and the court announced his opinion that it was a case of "too much mother-in-law." He advised the couple to live together again, and told the mother-in-law to stay away and leave them alone, and in the meantime, the mother was given the custody of the child.

COKE PRODUCTION STEADY

Output in the Connellsville Region Is Only Handicapped by Shortage of Cars.

CONNELLSVILLE, PA., Nov. 7.—(Special.)—The Courier will say tomorrow: Coke production in the Connellsville region last week was within a few tons of the same figures estimated for the week previous. All the plants in the region reported six days run but one, and the reason it did not was owing to the failure to get cars. The car famine as a curtailer of production is still an important factor.

The detailed report of the operation and output of the region for the week ending on Saturday, November 2, shows a total of 21,833 ovens, of which 19,830 were active and 2,003 idle. The total estimated production was 233,750. The active list of ovens shows a gain of 127. The Hecla Coke Company and the Hostetter Connellsville Coke Company put all their ovens in blast. Spring Grove, of Cochran Bros., also have all of their 50 oven plant in operation.

Shipments for the week aggregated 10,896 cars, distributed as follows: To Pittsburgh and river tipples, 3,730 cars; to points west of Pittsburgh, 5,178 cars; to points east of Connellsville, 1,986 cars.

DEMOCRATS SUSPECT FRAUD.

An All-Night Watch Kept Over the Official Canvass at Ebensburg Court House.

JOHNSTOWN, PA., Nov. 7.—(Special.)—Democrats from every part of the county are flocking into Ebensburg and tonight an all-night watch will be kept on the court house. The face of returns show that Francis J. O'Conner, Democrat, has been elected judge over A. V. Barker, Republican. The election board today began the official count, but the progress was very slow and Democrats are suspicious. Inexcusable delays, they assert, were frequent. They think that fraud is contemplated.

Judge Barker has notified the Democrats that he will contest the election. Judge Barker and his friends assert that they have enough evidence of illegal voting to change the result as shown. In case of a contest, Judge White of Indiana county, Judge Bell of Blair and Judge Bailey of Huntington county will compose the court.

DICK PUTS PLURALITY AT 68,000

No Change in Complexion of Legislature Since Wednesday's Returns—Chairman's Gubernatorial Boom Seems to Develop Fast.

(Special to The Pittsburgh Gazette.)

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 7.—"The Republican plurality in Ohio this year," said Chairman Dick of the state executive committee this evening, "will reach 68,000. It may go a bit higher, but I think that is the mark."

This statement was based upon semi-official returns from each of the 88 counties. The Republicans, he continued, have carried 62 counties, with an aggregate plurality of 90,840; the Democrats, 26 counties, with an aggregate plurality of 23,179.

The returns today made no change in the complexion of the general assembly from that of yesterday, namely: Representatives—Republicans, 68; Democrats, 42; Senate—Republicans, 21; Democrats, 9; Republican majority on joint ballot, 35. The fight for speaker of house has already begun. There are eight active candidates thus far. McKinnon of Ashtabula is leading the contest, with Price of Athens a close second. The others are Pollock of Stark, Willis of Hardin, Thomas of Huron, Seese of Summit, Arthur of Union, Comings of Lorain and Cole of Hancock.

Col. James Kilbourne, the defeated Democratic gubernatorial candidate, was able to sit up and notice things today for the first time since Tuesday evening. He is disposed to find fault with the men who framed the pronouncement at the Democratic convention, and attributes to several important omissions in that document his overwhelming defeat.

"What chances I had for election disappeared with the assassination of President McKinley," he said. "That sad event could not but arouse sympathy for the party with which he had been so long and so closely identified. Then there was the shifting of planks in the party state platform, a change that could not help startling many of our party members who had earnestly advocated matters that were omitted. That's what did most of it."

He says his campaign expenses were $265; $200 paid to the committee and $65 spent in touring the state.

Meanwhile Chairman Dick's gubernatorial boom is developing at a marvelous rate, and most of his friends think his election two years hence is practically assured.

Bad Actors Threatened.

NEW CASTLE, PA., Nov. 7.—(Special.)—The members of the DeKalb High Class Vaudeville Company of Butler, Pa., narrowly escaped violence at the hands of a mob here last night after the initial performance here. The company was to have appeared here three nights, but after the Butlerites were conducted through the alleys from the theater to their hotel to escape the angry men who threatened them, they decided to go out on the midnight train. The audience was displeased at the poor show.

Only one witness was examined, and, owing to the absence of the detectives who worked on the case, the inquest was adjourned until November 19.

Killed by Elevator—Baran Chupple, a Hungarian laborer employed at the Frick building, was badly injured at 1 o'clock yesterday. He was working at the elevator shaft and in some manner was caught and crushed when the car came down. His right leg was broken and his head cut and his skull probably fractured. He was taken to the Mercy hospital where he died at midnight.

Recovered in a Novel Way—Mrs. Anna Ambrose, who is living at the Mackin hotel, No. 1145 Penn avenue, was robbed of two watches and six rings about two weeks ago and yesterday she learned that parts of the stolen goods were being held by Postmaster George L. Holliday for insufficient postage. Lieut. Wills last night saw Miss Ambrose and had her describe the goods minutely. The description is identical with that of the goods, and today she will call and claim the two watches and three rings.

Bigamy Is Alleged—Oscar Patton of No. 1602 Fremont street, Allegheny, was arrested yesterday at the Hotel Anderson on complaint of Christina Patton, who says she is his wife. The woman charges Patton with bigamy. Patton denied that he was married to the woman. She said that Patton had deserted her and had married again, living at No. 1602 Fremont street, Allegheny. When it was explained that she could not enter a charge of bigamy against her husband, but would have to get a friend to make such a charge, an information for desertion was sworn out by her.

Visited Fellow Warden—Warden D. Bussinger of the Eastern penitentiary was a guest of Warden William McC. Johnson at the Riverside penitentiary yesterday, having stopped on his way to Kansas City to attend the National Prison Congress. The wardens had a lengthy talk relative to prison work, and at noon Mr. and Mrs. Bussinger dined with Warden Johnson. In the afternoon Warden Bussinger and his wife visited ex-Warden Wright in the East End. They will leave for Kansas City in the morning. Warden Johnson will leave this afternoon to attend the prison congress, accompanied by Dr. O. J. Bennett, J. R. Reed and C. F. Nevin.

Clothing Is Needed — The Homeopathic hospital has sent out an appeal for old clothing for men and women. This is wanted for the charity patients. Many of those, who are about ready to leave the hospital, were brought in during the warm weather, and the clothing they have is not sufficient, now that the cold weather has set in. Others come in with their clothing in such condition that it must be destroyed for sanitary reasons. There is an especial demand for overcoats, woolen underwear, winter caps and shawls, but any garment that is warm and serviceable will be gratefully received. The hospital is crowded and the demands are growing all the time. Last year 2,236 patients were cared for, of whom 1,828 were charity and but 408 pay patients. This year the record will be greatly increased.

Three Other Old Employes of the Carnegie Steel Company Rewarded for Faithful Service.

Yesterday a supplementary list of beneficiaries of the United States Steel Corporation's recognition of ability and long service at the Edgar Thomson Steel works and blast furnaces at Braddock was made known.

There are three who have been given blocks of stock in addition to those previously mentioned. They are: John F. Lewis of North Braddock, master mechanic at the Edgar Thomson blast furnaces the last six years, and for almost a dozen years previously connected with the machine shops; Edward B. White, general rail inspector for the Edgar Thomson Steel works for 18 years and for years previously employed in the rail mills of the plant, and Camille Mercader, Count Mercader by virtue of family lineage in Austro-Hungary. Count Mercader was connected with the Edgar Thomson Steel works as chief of the civil, mechanical, electrical and mill engineering departments and as assistant chief draughtsman for seven years. He is now connected with the Pittsburgh office of the United States Steel Corporation as consulting engineer, and resides in Braddock.

It is said that Messrs. White and Lewis received blocks of stock for $25,000 and Count Mercader, who has been with the Carnegie interests for a total of 16 years, stock worth $75,000.

BOILERS

Require Strong Workmen to Construct.

A big, hustling boilermaker down at Niles, O., had an experience with Grape-Nuts Food that is worth knowing. Geo. Preston says there was a time when his appetite for breakfast failed him, and it came from stomach trouble caused by his way of eating.

He would get hungry from his work about 9 or 10 o'clock, but was not allowed to eating during work hours, and when dinner time came he would overeat and would be in misery the rest of the day, and not able to eat any supper.

He says: "I was troubled with headaches and so dizzy from stooping over that I would stagger when straightening up.

"Grape-Nuts being called to my attention I took a package to my boarding place and had some for breakfast, and I did not get hungry until near the noon hour. I now knew what was the matter with me. I began to eat a good, healthy food and it agreed with me, so I have kept on using Grape-Nuts for breakfast with a little cream.

"I have never taken one drop of medicine only once for sore throat, but I am now as well and hearty as any man that walks, and I know how to keep my strength now by the use of good food, and I think I would lose a part of it if I left off Grape-Nuts. This food has been better to me and my family than any medicine.

"I am at Niles, O., and ready to show the truth of what I write. Anyone can call and see me and my family and judge for themselves whether we are healthy or not. I have used 221 packages of Grape-Nuts since I began."

TO RELIEVE THE CONGESTION

REVIVAL OF OLD FREIGHT COMMITTEE IS FAVORED.

President John Bindley Thinks Old Chamber of Commerce Plan Would Be of Great Use in Dealing With Freight Blockade Like the Present One—Railroads Complain of Delay in Unloading Cars.

John Bindley, president of the Bindley Hardware Company and of the Pittsburgh chamber of commerce, is in favor of reviving the old freight committee of the chamber of commerce as a means of forestalling such freight congestion as the one at present harassing all the industries of the city.

"For about two years the chamber had a freight committee," he says. "Nearly two years ago it passed out of existence simply because it was not used by shippers to the extent originally planned. Its end came because it had not fulfilled its mission. If, however, the members of the chamber would place reliance upon that committee and use it as a centralizing influence to be brought to bear upon railroads, much could, I believe, be accomplished."

General Freight Agent F. A. Dean of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie said yesterday that the congestion on that road is still great, although some relief is being obtained. On Sundays in particular great work is being done. On each of the past two Sundays nearly 2,000 cars of freight have been sent out of this territory, making about 60 trains and giving a total length of about 12 miles of freight. The tonnage was close upon 80,000 each Sunday.

The Baltimore & Ohio yards and those of the Pennsylvania in this city are still full of freight, and complaint is being made by the railroad officials that consignees are not prompt in emptying the cars in the yards. An official said that in one outlying yard there are 25 cars of freight consigned to Pittsburgh that cannot find room in the central yards on account of these being already crowded with unloaded cars.

Rio Grande Officers Elected.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The directors of the Rio Grande Western and Denver & Rio Grande railroads have elected the following officers: Chairman of the board, George J. Gould; president, E. T. Jeffery; vice-president and general manager, Russell Harding; secretary, Stephen Little; treasurer, J. W. Gilluly; assistant treasurer, Jesse White. J. B. Andrews was elected assistant secretary for the Denver & Rio Grande and W. F. Colton assistant secretary for the Rio Grande Western. The directors for the Rio Grande Southern elected the following: President, E. T. Jeffery; vice-president and general manager, Russell Harding; secretary, J. B. Andrews; treasurer, J. W. Gilluly; assistant secretary, Stephen Little; assistant treasurer, Jesse White.

Fewer Official Bondsmen.

The Western Passenger association has under consideration a plan of cutting down free transportation to large shippers. This pass problem has been a nuisance for several years, and has evaded all anti-pass agreements. Whenever a railroad manager wished to have the legal right to give annual passes to heavy shippers, his method has been to appoint them official bondsmen of the road. An official bondsman is supposed to look after the various bonds needed by railroads, whenever suit was entered, or any other legal action requiring security from the railroad, was begun. The Alton tried using bonding companies last year, and, it is said, the plan of private bonding is likely to be abandoned by the western roads.

Larger Produce Yards.

Plans are under consideration for the enlargement of the present yards of the Allegheny Valley, at Twenty-first street, to double their present capacity. These yards are used almost exclusively for handling produce, of which a large portion of the city's supply comes over that road. It is also said to be the ultimate intention of the Pennsylvania to consolidate at those yards the whole Pittsburgh produce business, capable of being handled there. This plan has been hastened by the present notable congestion of freight which has called for immediate provisions of greater yard and track facilities.

Bessemer's Great Cut-Off.

One of the economies to be effected by the new cut-off of the Bessemer & Lake Erie railroad, between Kremis and Osgood, is a great easing of the heaviest grade on the line for the long eastbound trains. This will enable dispensing with one of the two helping engines now used on this grade.

Over this road the heaviest trains in the world are hauled, and during the greater part of the year the road comes close to hauling the record tonnage, in proportion to its mileage, in the world. It possesses the heaviest and most powerful locomotives ever built.

MANY EMINENT NAMES.

President Roosevelt and Seth Low Honored by Peabody Trustees.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—(Special.)—Trustees of the Peabody education fund held their 40th annual meeting today. Chief Justice Melville W. Fuller presided, and others present were Dr. Samuel A. Green of Massachusetts, the secretary; J. P. Morgan, Joseph H. Choate, ambassador to England; Richard Olney, former secretary of state; Daniel C. Curry, general agent of the trust fund.

Seth Low, mayor-elect, was chosen to fill the vacancy in the board caused by the death of Senator William M. Evarts, who was one of the original board appointed by Mr. Peabody. President Roosevelt was appointed to succeed President McKinley and Hoke Smith of Georgia was chosen as successor to the late William Wirt Henry of Virginia, as trustee. Another vacancy, caused by the death of Bishop Whipple of Minnesota, was not filled.

OPENING NIGHT WAS BRILLIANT

First Concert of Orchestra Season Was a Great Society Event.

MRS. CLEVELAND WAS THE HONORED GUEST

Last Night's Concert Was Notable as the Most Brilliant Opening Ever Given to the Orchestra Season.

Society came to life in earnest last night, and made the evening program of Founder's day, at the Carnegie institute, a thing entirely worthy of its purpose. Long before the hour of opening the avenues to the music hall were thronged with carriages. By 8 o'clock the roadways leading into the park, as well as the entire available space on Herbert street and nearby cuts to Fifth avenue were alight with carriage lamps.

Victor Herbert.

Almost every one was in demi-dress—the dainty frocking, which looks so much more effective in its mingling hue, than conventional evening dress, and the auditorium presented an imposing appearance, with its three tiers of mingled flash and sheen, its shifting lights of eager, interested faces, and its flutter of fans and programs. The occasional glitter of jewels punctuated the coloring, and soft snatches of conversation and laughter broke forth in each interval of music.

It was in fact, as much a society event as a concert, and it might prove hard to make a just division of those who came to honor Beethoven and those who came for the sake of the social flutter, and to see the guest of the evening, Mrs. Cleveland.

A burst of applause, vigorous from masculine hands, but softly appreciative from feminine palms, greeted her as the party entered their box, and throughout the evening expressions of admiration and pleasure were heard throughout the hall at her presence.

No less apparent was the general pleasure in the renewal of the orchestra season, and if the opening night be criterion by which to judge, this will be the most widely successful season the Pittsburgh orchestra has experienced since its inauguration. All of the old faces were present, and many new ones, and despite the social character always distinguishing the concert of Founder's day, there was evinced a gratifying spirit of musical appreciation during the orchestral numbers.

Opening Number Was Excellent.

The opening number was a light and brilliant overture by Eduard Lassen, whose name appeared for the first on a Pittsburgh orchestra program. Hitherto he has been known chiefly through his songs, but last night's production of his Festival overture insures him a place in the regard of the people here. The overture is just such a work as shows forth at its best under Mr. Herbert's baton, and in this number especially the orchestra seemed to swing in well nigh perfect harmony. These facts combined to make it a delightfully pleasing number. The hereditary instincts of the composer show more prominently in the closing phrases than in the earlier portions, and here especially was the spirit of the piece admirably grasped and admirably given.

The symphony of the evening was Beethoven's Fourth, in B flat, more rarely heard than his greater ones, and in strong contrast to most of his later compositions, in that it is permeated throughout with a joyousness somewhat foreign to the composer. In bringing out this spirit, which is merry without losing dignity, lightsome without triviality, the orchestra failed many times to get worthy effects. The first movement, which has been beautifully compared to "a gradual awakening from a dream-haunted sleep," was very nicely played. The shading of the first violins in the opening adagio was nothing short of exquisite, and the changful rythms of the Allegro vivace, and later of the menuetto were brought out with striking precision and energy. In the second movement, however, and in the second part of the third there was apparent lack of interest; the inability of the players to grasp the composer's spirit was evident in too abrupt changes, making the effect blotchy instead of softly modulating, from grave to gay, from the rippling whisper of undertoned enjoyment to the "forte" of genuine gaiety. The last movement partook of the excellence of the first, the rendition growing more spirited as it advanced, until the end came, with an enthusiasm which communicated itself to the least understanding of the listeners, leaving an unquestionably good impression.

Herbert at His Best.

The second half of the program opened with a Massenet suite, "Esclarmonde," given now for the first time at the orchestra concerts. In such music as this Mr. Herbert is at his best as an interpreter, and last night's rendition was fully up to former standards. It is full, exceedingly showy, teeming with contrasts, fairly scintillating with brilliant ornament, but withal, shallow and unsatisfying. The second movement, characterized by a queer succession of short notes played in turn by the different instruments, interwoven by thrills and runs by the muted strings, was well done for all its intricacies, and the third movement, the most majestic and solid portion of the composition, was likewise played with a full understanding of its possibilities. The oboe solo in the fourth movement was also very nicely rendered. In the finale of this part all the resources of the orchestra are brought into vigorous, even violent, play, as is characteristic of Massenet. These opportunities were for the most part fully realized by Mr. Herbert and his men, and the suite was, in its rendition, by far the most spirited number of the evening's program.

The Wagner selection, the Entrance of Gods into Valhalla, from Das Rheingold, was the last on the program. In this the strings did some nice work, and, barring the sometimes exaggerated climaxes, the effect was not unsatisfactory.

Mrs. Dorothy Harvey was the soloist of the evening, singing in the first part of the program Bachelet's "Chere Nuit," and later, Liszt's Mignon's Song and "Staendchen" by Richard Strauss. Her voice is clear but of somewhat unsympathetic quality and she was at her best in the first solo. Her rendition of this was conventional but not unpleasing, while in neither of her latter numbers did she seem to grasp the highest sense of the music.

EXPLODING GAS WRECKS HOUSE

MRS. REINHARD SINZ INJURED IN EXPLOSION.

Walls of a Residence Shattered and Gas in Another House Ignited—Gas in Sewers Also Exploded—Mrs. Sinz Went Into the Cellar to Find the Leak, Carrying a Lighted Candle, With Awful Results.

An explosion of natural gas in the residence of Reinhard Sinz, No. 45 Buchanan street, Allegheny, yesterday afternoon, totally wrecked the building, burned Mrs. Sinz about the face and neck, and caused a fire in the cellar of the adjoining house. Mrs. Sinz was badly burned, and was taken to the Allegheny General hospital. One side of the house was blown out, and the front and rear walls loosened.

The odor of escaping gas had been noticed by the residents along Buchanan street since the night before. About 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Sinz, who occupies the second floor of the two-story frame building, lighted a candle and started to the cellar, to see if the gas was leaking in there.

She had just opened the door leading into the cellar, when there was a terrific explosion, knocking Mrs. Sinz down, and blowing the walls out. Gas, that had accumulated in the cellar adjoining, immediately took fire, and an alarm was sent in. Lewis Schaeffer, who with his wife and baby occupied the lower floor of the house, picked Mrs. Sinz up and carried her to a nearby residence.

The force of the explosion carried away the side wall from the ground to the floor of the attic, and laid it across an alley. A portion of the wall was carried over the house, across the alley.

By the time the engines arrived, the fire in the residence of Mrs. Louis Foulker next door, had gained much headway. It was confined to the cellar and the damage will be slight.

While the firemen were fighting the fire in the cellar of Mrs. Foulker's residence, two explosions occurred in the sewer. The lids on the man-holes were blown high in the air, and the gratings over the sewers were blown out. The force of the explosion in the Sinz residence was so strong, that the stone foundations were blown out into the street.

A crippled son of Mrs. Sinz had a narrow escape, having a moment before gone into a summer kitchen, a few feet from the house. He was uninjured.

All the cellars along the street were full of gas, and in the street the odor was very strong. The sewers were opened in order that the gas might escape.

Here's a Pointer.

Take a postal card, address it to the Cranitonic Hair Food Co., 828 West Broadway, New York City, and write on the reverse side something like this: "Please send me a copy of the 48 page illustrated book entitled Hair Care and a sample of the Cranitonic Hair Food Products, which the Commercial Gazette says you are sending free and postpaid to people who ask for them." Sign your name, give your address, street and number and mail the card. Then wait a few days and you will receive by mail a sample of the most exquisite French toilet preparation ever offered to the public.

If you will write a letter, enclosing a small lock of hair or a sample of the daily combings, and state if you have falling hair, dandruff or itching scalp, the physicians of the Cranitonic Institute will make a microscopical examination of the hair, send you a report upon its condition and prescribe curative treatment free of charge. 111h

FREEDMEN'S AID ANNIVERSARY

Great Gathering of Methodist Divines in Allegheny Next Week.

MANY BISHOPS WILL MAKE ADDRESSES

Most of the Prominent Divines of the Church in America Will Be Present—Arrangements Being Made for Their Entertainment.

The thirty-fifth anniversary of the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education society of the Methodist Episcopal church in America will be observed in connection with the coming meeting of the general committee of the society which convenes in Calvary church at Beech and Allegheny avenues, Allegheny, next Monday and Tuesday. Calvary church has made generous arrangements for the entertainment of the committee.

The members have arranged, in co-operation with the other churches of Allegheny, to entertain the members of the general committee in handsome style. A special caterer will serve lunch for not only the general committee, but also all the members of the Pittsburgh preachers' meeting, who are to be the guests of the society on next Monday noon.

Special services in Pittsburgh and Allegheny churches, at which members of the committee will be in attendance, will really open the celebration. The opening meeting on Monday morning will be public. Besides the addresses of welcome and report of the treasurer and secretaries for the board of managers, there will be brief addresses by the following divines who will present the special features of the work, as they have seen it from personal observation: Bishops J. M. Walden, I. W. Joyce, H. W. Warren, D. A. Goodsell, W. F. Mallalieu, and C. C. McCabe. It is seldom that such a large body of bishops is heard at one meeting.

The general committee having control of the affairs of the schools, is appointed by the general conference. It comprises all the bishops of the church, the representatives from the fourteen general conference districts and also the ministers and laymen, elected from the board of managers at Cincinnati to administer the work under the direction of the general committee. Over fifty members of the committee and visiting missionaries will be in attendance.

DONOR IS PITTSBURGHER.

Mysterious Offer of $60,000 to Allegheny College, Meadville, Comes From a Resident of This City.

The unknown philanthropist who has subscribed $60,000 to the endowment of Allegheny college, at Meadville, is a Pittsburgher. The gift is made on condition that $80,000 more is raised for endowment by general subscription, and the donor will not permit his name to become known for three years. His identity or station in life the Rev. Dr. W. L. Crawford, president of the institution, refused to reveal last night, after he had admitted that the gentleman was a citizen of this city.

Mr. Crawford stopped over in Pittsburgh yesterday for Founder's Day, on his way home from a trip through this section of the state in quest of subscriptions to the fund required in order to secure the gift of $60,000.

At the Hotel Lincoln last night President Crawford expressed himself as greatly gratified at the manner in which the friends of the college had responded to his appeal. Almost half the $80,000 has been subscribed, $28,000 by Pittsburgh people, while several other subscriptions will probably be added before he leaves the city.

Three great additions to the college are now nearing completion at Meadville—the Ford memorial chapel, to cost $40,000; the library, to which Andrew Carnegie contributed $40,000, and the observatory.

The chapel was given by Capt. John B. Ford, the glass manufacturer of Ford City. Capt. Ford's three granddaughters, one of whom, Mrs. Dr. James A. Ballantyne, is a resident of Wilkinsburg, will equip the chapel with an organ at an additional cost of $6,000, in memory of their father, Capt. Emory Ford, of Allegheny. Recently the college board of trustees, of which Durban Horne of this city is president, engaged J. P. Mayer, the Pittsburgh organ architect, who designed many of the Carnegie organs, to prepare the plans for the new organ.

The college has received this year in gifts over $250,000.

FOURTEEN PAGES.

The Day We Celebrate.

It is one of the things to be sincerely regretted that our present physical limitations make it impossible for a fraction of those who desire the privilege to get within sight and hearing of the Founder's day exercises. Perhaps in the future some Marconi may arise to make this annual celebration as free to all the people as the founder and the board of trustees would have it.

Yesterday's exhibition of popular interest in Founder's day, stimulated by the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland, must have been gratifying to the trustees of Carnegie institute. No less gratifying must be that national and international interest that is shown, first, in the presence year after year of persons of distinction, who gladly come to be the guests of the city on this festal occasion, and, second, in the entrance by the modern masters of the best products of their brush to compete for those prizes of the annual art exhibition that now carry a distinction far beyond their intrinsic value.

Founder's day of this year was all that we are becoming accustomed to and all that we are learning to expect. The presence of the founder himself was the only thing that could have added to the pleasure of those who yesterday listened and applauded. But if not present in the flesh he was there in thought and deed, and, like Ben Adhem's, his name led all the rest, and for the same reason. It is not because of his promise for the future that he is loved, but because of what he has already done for his fellow men.

The thoughts Mr. Cleveland expressed concerning the "grand partnership of American citizenship" and the "reciprocity of duty among our citizens who have a common ownership in national benefits" were inspired by the manner in which Mr. Carnegie makes use of the wealth he has accumulated, and were worthy of the occasion. It was an address that will bear more than a second perusal. Chairman Frew's remedy for such crimes as the one that robbed the nation of McKinley is a good one. Compulsory education through the length and breadth of the land would safeguard our republican institutions. The Carnegie institute is doing a great work for the spread of intelligence, but it is necessary to begin lower down than an institution of this character can reach. The report of Secretary Church is an excellent exposition of the year's work. The addresses of Messrs. Alexander and Allan pertaining to a tariff on art and to Pittsburgh's influence on art were appropriate, and Mr. Jefferson added a touch of color that brought the exercises to a happy close. As a whole it was indeed a feast of reason and a flow of soul.

The McKinley National Memorial.

Many persons were of the opinion that Washington would be the proper place for the national memorial in honor of President McKinley, but sentiment has prevailed in the deliberations of the committee having the project in charge, and Canton has been decided upon, the site to be in the cemetery where repose the remains of the late chief magistrate and his children. While there is likely to be some criticism for a time of the committee's decision there will eventually be general approval and hearty acquiescence.

Canton was so closely linked with all that was near and dear to Mr. McKinley that the associations have come to be looked upon as sacred. It was in Canton that he won his triumphs and sorrowed over bereavements; it was there that he reared the home to which he joyfully returned when temporarily freed from the cares of state, and it was of that home in Canton he thought while he lay dying. It is fitting, therefore, that the memorial of a reverent and grateful nation should be erected in the little town which Mr. McKinley so greatly loved, and that it should overlook the hallowed ground his feet so often pressed in his pilgrimages to the graves of his children. Ostentation properly gives way to sentiment in the selection of a site for the memorial, and there should be no objection from those who preferred Washington, which is to have a sufficient McKinley memorial in the national bridge that is to be built across the Potomac.

The question of a site having been settled, the more important task of raising the necessary funds now confronts the promoters of the memorial project. Fortunately there are capable men at the head of the movement, and they have wisely determined to have a central auxiliary committee in each state and territory. With the aid of such a large number of workers there is every reason for believing that the money will be promptly secured and the memorial plans pushed to completion.

The Navy Portfolio.

The intimation that Representative Alston G. Dayton of West Virginia, may become secretary of the navy in the event of the resignation of Mr. Long, may be a good guess. Certain it is that Mr. Dayton possesses unusual qualifications for that important position. Ever since he became a member of the house of representatives he has served on the naval committee, and in the discharge of his duties has thoroughly familiarized himself with the details of the work. This long experience would be of inestimable value to the head of the navy department. The possibility that the portfolio may go to the West Virginian, if Secretary Long relinquishes it, is heightened by President Roosevelt's well known proclivity for considering fitness in making appointments, and by the warm place that the navy holds in his heart.

Imprudent Friends.

There is some sense in the advice of the government authorities imposing silence upon the friends of Miss Ellen M. Stone, the captive missionary. The too garrulous friends of the unfortunate woman have already jeopardized her safe recovery by their indiscreet publication of the fact that a letter from Miss Stone had been received by Consul General Dickenson at Constantinople. On two former occasions negotiations between the brigands and those who are seeking to effect her relief were abruptly broken off by the bandits because they suspected that their hiding place would be discovered through the information necessary to carry on the negotiations. The necessity for absolute secrecy in conducting the arrangements to ransom the American missionary is not only necessary for the expedition of that work itself, but it is also required as a means of protection to Miss Stone. Should the brigands conceive the idea that their whereabouts and movements were being published through any communication made by Miss Stone to her friends her life would be in great danger. As it is, the case presents many serious complications and there is much fear that the present hopeful efforts to effect Miss Stone's release may be frustrated. The brigands are a treacherous and suspicious group of villains, and even under the most favorable circumstances are a tricky lot to deal with. The crime of abduction has already startled the civilized world without having it turned into murder through the imprudence of Miss Stone's friends.

Another Refusal From Indiana.

It will be remembered that Gov. Mount of Indiana refused to honor extradition papers issued by the governor of Kentucky for Messrs. Taylor and Finley. The official request for the surrender of these Kentuckians has been renewed, and it has met with the same response from Gov. Mount's successor, Gov. Durbin. Mr. Taylor was elected governor of Kentucky, and was counted out. He and Mr. Finley were charged with complicity in the murder of Goebel. Two other members of the Republican state government have already been persecuted into life-long imprisonment on the same charge. Messrs. Taylor and Finley knew the fate that awaited them in Kentucky, and, therefore, made their escape into Indiana. It was the opinion of Gov. Mount, and it is now the opinion of Gov. Durbin, that the accused men would not receive an impartial trial in Kentucky. This refusal to surrender the fugitives is a stinging rebuke to Kentucky, but the conduct of the Goebel trials already held is ample justification. We don't believe that Messrs. Taylor and Finley had anything to do with the murder of Goebel, and they ought not to be turned over to Kentucky.

A Good Example.

William Buchtel of Akron, O., has set a good example for all candidates for public office. After his nomination by the Republicans for representative he announced that he would not give a cent to political "heelers," but would give $50 to the Akron charities department, which he did. Mr. Buchtel not only was elected, but had the satisfaction of leading the county ticket.

The political heeler, paid worker, boodler, or by whatever name he is known, has been tolerated too long. As a rule he is without influence, unless it be among a few fellows as disreputable as himself, and he has prevented many good men from running for office because they would not submit to such levying of tribute. The success of the Akron man has demonstrated that the heeler is as useless as he is offensive, and can no longer be considered a factor in the winning of political triumphs. Mr. Buchtel has done the public a service by his declaration of independence, and the example he has set should be followed by all men who aspire to political honors.

It May Be Put Off.

Projectors of great expositions ought to begin preparations a year earlier than they do. This plan would avoid the celebration of anniversaries a year after the anniversary has gone by. It will be remembered that Chicago celebrated the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus 461 years after the arrival of that enterprising distinguished navigator. Chicago had intended to be on time with her show, but it was found impossible to get it ready at the date announced originally. Circumstances which refused to yield to Chicago's control intervened, and the Columbian World's fair, dated for 1892, was held in 1893.

It appears now that St. Louis may have the same sort of trouble with her Louisiana Purchase exposition. The date to be celebrated falls in 1903, but some of its officials say it will not be ready by that time. Others say that it will. St. Louis certainly will try to show Chicago how much better she can do this sort of thing, and time only can tell how she will succeed. At all events, it is somewhat early to begin to talk about postponement.

Dealing With Turkey.

One may accept the French explanation of the move against Turkey as the real cause for the action, or one may regard it as merely the cover for an intention on the part of the French government to gain territorially and in prestige at home, if not abroad, at the expense of the sultan; but whether it be regarded one way or the other there will be no sympathy wasted in Europe or in America over the misfortunes present or to come of the Grand Turk. The extension of the influence of European nations throughout the orient is a good thing for all people, even including those races whose dominion is threatened. If France can neutralize, or correct the evils of Mohammedan rule it will be well, no matter what the motive.

The Hon. Webster Davis' book on the Boer war has been published. We fear the Hon. Web has been squeezed out of sight by more recent events.

Hereafter there ought to be a more sensible observance of the difference between hysterical abuse and genuine reform.

It may be assumed that Mark Twain got quite a bunch of fun out of that New York campaign.

Mr. Gorman of Maryland is another gentleman who will be sure to claim a vindication.

THE STATE PRESS.

There was no landslide Tuesday—simply an all-round Republican victory that shows how well the country is satisfied with Republican policies.—New Castle Herald.

There is no telling what Senator Gorman will do with the fact that one of the president's boys has slid down the White House banisters. He will make a Maryland issue of it somehow, though.—Lancaster News.

It will take the official vote to decide in whose favor the most ballots were cast for judge of Cambria county yesterday, and probably the courts will be called on to decide whether all the votes returned were reported correctly.—Johnstown Tribune.

It would be a welcome innovation in McKeesport that would give us street cars without the unsightly and dangerous overhead wire system, and it is an agreeable bit of news that a Massachusetts man thinks he has an invention that will do that very thing.—McKeesport Times.

Greater New York and the commonwealth of Pennsylvania profit in like measure by this verdict of the people. In the former case official corruption is uprooted and clean men put in public place. In Pennsylvania the party which has fulfilled its every obligation to the people has been indorsed and its power perpetuated.—Altoona Gazette.

There is considerable complaint about the quality of oil sold by some of our merchants. Consumers claim that they pay the highest prices and get an inferior grade of kerosene represented as the best. An investigation should be made to determine whether it is the wholesaler or retailer who is imposing on the public.—Braddock News.

Let the good work of consolidating our valley into Beaver City go rapidly forward. It is the destiny of our towns, and will make a city of which we shall be proud, and that will give prestige to the valley and to Western Pennsylvania. A city of over 35,000 people will at once be formed, with the present population, and within the time required to effect the consolidation it will have reached 40,000. Our place will then be where it belongs, with the third class cities of the state.—New Brighton News.

The Hon. Jacob Bolard of Cambridge Springs will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for state senator at the primaries next spring. Capt. Bolard is one of Crawford county's best citizens, a successful business man, a soldier of the rebellion and a stalwart Republican. He served one term in the lower house at Harrisburg, and his experience there would be of value in the senate. Western Crawford would claim him as her candidate and would give him a loyal support over all comers.—Conneautville Courier.

The election is over and the unofficial citizen may now resume his accustomed walk and conversation for a time without being met by political disputationists or subjected to the vocal assaults of the campaign orator. NEW YORK NOTE BOOK.

Tammany Leaders in a Panic Over the Result of the Election—Many of Them Meditate Getting Out Now While Retreat Is Open.

The Pittsburgh Gazette Bureau, Herald Building, NEW YORK, Nov. 7.

Tammany is on the run. That is the popular impression here, and the resignation of Martin Engel, long the political leader of the notorious East Side district known as "De Ate," is taken as confirmation of the opinion. This is the district in which Justice Jerome unearthed the "red light" and "cadet" infamies. Martin Engel has been the Tammany leader there for generations, and Jerome has held him responsible for the disgraceful conditions which have made the locality a stench in the nostrils of the community. Engel has said that he will resign the leadership. He thinks he has held it long enough, and desires that some younger man shall take the responsibilities and burdens of the position. Jerome smiles quietly. It is common talk tonight that Engel is the first of a long list of Tammany men that will get out of sight before the new district attorney takes possession of his office. It is well understood that Jerome will not spare anyone, and that he will particularly delight in dragging into the white light of publicity those district leaders in whose bailiwicks there have been the most flagrant abuses. Engel had a long conference with Richard Croker this morning, and soon afterward told a reporter that he intended to retire from the leadership of his district. If Engel gets out, there is no doubt that others will follow. Most of them, like Croker himself, have been so dazed by the crushing defeat that they have not been able to make up their minds what to do. The instinct of many of them will be to run to cover before the hounds of retribution get on their track. They can get away now, but if they wait until after January 1, they do not know what they may be compelled to face.

Where Real Estate Costs Money.

A suggestion of the value of Broadway real estate came up today, when Julian Benedict obtained in court an order for $8,750 as commission on the sale of the little slice of land, with an old house on it, at the northwest corner of Broadway and Thirty-fourth street. This $8,750 would be a fair price for a piece of land of that size in many places, but in this case it was only the commission. The cost of the real estate was $875,000.

Molineux's Hopes Deferred.

Roland B. Molineux knows the anguish of the law's delay, if ever a man did. He expected that the hearing on the motion of his attorneys to quash the indictment against him would be argued today, but the district attorney was not ready to proceed with the argument, and the case went over for a week. Molineux, in his cell in the Tombs, keeps up his spirits and says he is sure of acquittal in the end.

Hart's Last Days Crowded With Grief.

One of the saddest deaths of a man prominent in New York that has occurred for years was that of Henry Hart today. He was the founder, and for half a century the head of the Third avenue street railway. His death was not unexpected for he was 91 years of age; but the fact that it was hastened by his loss of the great property that had always been his pride, lent an element of pathos to his taking off that everyone must recognize. Mr. Hart has not been the same man since he was ejected from the control of the company two years ago, and when he left his dingy office in the power house of the Third avenue road it was felt that he would soon be carried to his grave. He passed away at 10 o'clock this morning, and had he been 30 or 40 years younger, men would have said he died of a broken heart.

Ice Skating Season About to Begin.

Ice skating will begin in New York on Saturday. It will not be out of doors, but the ice will be as good and there will be just as much sport as if it were on the lake in Central park. New Yorkers are great people for skating, and the skating rinks up town are always well patronized even when the red ball is up in Central park and the Bronx, showing that the ice on the ornamental waters is officially safe.

Fashionable Outlook for Horse Show.

The sale of boxes at the horse show took place in the Garden theater this afternoon. Bidding was brisk and good prices were realized. The first box brought $635, and prices ranged from that sum down to $500 for desirable boxes. W. L. Elkins, P. A. B. Widener, Elbridge T. Gerry and Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish were among the purchasers. Interest in the horse show is keen, as it always is, and the vigor with which the bidding for boxes went on today suggested that the show of fashion on the opening day of the horse show will be as effective as ever it was. Automobiles hold possession of Madison Square garden this week, but the auto exhibition will close on Saturday night. Immediately thereafter preliminary work on the horse show will begin.

Astor's Latest Hotel Scheme.

William Waldorf Astor has a weakness for building big hotels. The Waldorf-Astoria is the largest specimen of a public house of entertainment in this country, but Mr. Astor means to go that gorgeous institution one better. It will be in New York city, too. It is reported tonight that he has had plans made for a nine-story apartment hotel, to stand on the block between Broadway and West End avenues, and reaching from Seventy-eighth to Seventy-ninth streets. It is to cost about $2,500,000. Work will not begin until next spring, but it will be pushed along rapidly after that time. It is said that the building will be erected around a courtyard, as several luxurious apartment hotels in this city have been of late, and that this court will communicate, by an underground passage, with the rapid transit tunnel which will run along Seventy-ninth street. The land is part of an estate bought in colonial times by Gov. Van Den Heuvel of Demerara. It came into possession of the Astors by marriage a generation ago. William Waldorf's father espousing a granddaughter of the old governor. It is worth noting that all large buildings uptown along the line of the rapid transit tunnel are making arrangements for a convenient and quick connection therewith.

SOLVING A MYSTERY.

Chicago Police Come Upon the Evidences of a Cold-Blooded Murder and Robbery.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—With the discovery of a blood bespattered basement room at 192 North Union avenue and the arrest of its late occupant to-day, Felipo Rini, an Italian fruit peddler, the mystery surrounding the death of Antonio Natali, whose body was found hidden in a barrel on the prairie near Western avenue and Rice street, is believed to have been cleared up. That Natali was lured into the basement and murdered for his money by several men seems practically certain.

In the pocket of Rini was found $200, mostly in bills, supposed to be a part of the proceeds of the robbery, some of the bills being covered with what appears to be blood stains. Two bloody hatchets were found in the house and a trail of red stains leads to the street, where Natali's body is supposed to have been loaded into a wagon and hauled away. A necktie, identified as one belonging to Natali, was found in the basement. In the yard were several fruit barrels similar to that in which the murdered Italian's body was found. A wagon in which the body is believed to have been hauled away was discovered in Rini's yard. There are stains in the bottom of the wagon believed to be blood spots.

The police have four other men under arrest. They are Michael Leoni, Dominica Duchi, Dominica Vermonia, and Giovani Scarfari. One other alleged participant in the crime is being hunted.

TALK WITH PRESIDENT.

President O'Connell of Machinists Conferred With President Roosevelt on the Eight-Hour Law.

President James O'Connell of the International Association of Machinists was in Pittsburgh yesterday on his way to the Pacific coast. A number of strikes of the organization still pending in the west and at San Francisco call for his attention. President O'Connell has had a conference with President Theodore Roosevelt dealing with the advisability of extending the scope of the eight-hour work day law.

The president of the machinists intimated that the association would probably endeavor to continue the wage agreements which have been established in most cities for another year. These provide for a nine-hour work day. He says that wage settlements have been made for 75,000 of the members of the association, and that not over 2,500 remain on strike. He added that in many instances the employers agreed to the hour and wage demand, but did not enter a formal agreement with the association.

Another matter of national legislation in which labor was taken up by the Pittsburgh district officials of the United Mine Workers yesterday. The officials here drafted a petition in support of the demand of the national organization and other labor unions for the re-enactment of the Chinese exclusion act, suggesting that it include all Asiatic races.

TRAIN ROBBER CAUGHT.

St. Louis Police Claim That a Man Arrested for Forgery Is a Notorious Bandit.

ST. LOUIS, MO., Nov. 7.—(Special.)—Laura Bullion, who, together with her male companion, known as Cunningham, was arrested here on a charge of forging the name of J. W. Smith, cashier of the National bank of Helena, [illegible] told Chief of Police Desmond that her companion is Harry Longbaugh, who is known to be one of the Great Northern train robbers.

The woman said that in Fort Worth shortly after her first meeting with her companion, who then called himself Cunningham, she discovered in his pocket a dictionary on the fly leaf of which was written: "Harry Longbaugh, Wagner, Mont." She found her told Chief Desmond that when "Cunningham" gave her $7,000 in unsigned Helena National bank notes, she was convinced that he was Longbaugh, the train robber. She said she never mentioned her suspicions to "Cunningham" because "she was too wise."

She confessed to the chief that she had forged the name of J. W. Smith, cashier of the National bank of Helena, to the notes found so signed in her possession.

MARYLAND DEMOCRATIC.

It Is Probable That the Republicans Have Lost Five Members of the Legislature.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 7.—The supervisors of election in the various counties of the state commenced today at noon the official canvass of the vote cast last Tuesday, but enough is known to make it certain, in the absence of unexpected changes in the official count, that the Democrats will control both branches of the legislature. They have elected one and probably two additional delegates from Baltimore city, two from Cecil county and possibly one from Caroline, which have heretofore been counted in the Republican column. This will give the Democrats 50 votes in the house and at least 17 in the senate, or a majority of 11 on joint ballot. The returns thus far received show several unusually close contests.

It will require the official vote to decide the fate of the state ticket and the present indications are that neither of the successful candidates will have a majority of 1,000, the indications pointing to the election of Hering (Dem.) for Comptroller and Parran (Rep.) for clerk of the court of appeals.

HARCOURT SPEAKS OUT.

Liberal Leader Denounces British Course in South Africa as Mischievous and Unconstitutional.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—In a three-column letter to the Times Sir William Vernon Harcourt indicts the government's policy and conduct in the South African war, especially in the latter stages.

He declares that the banishment of Boers and the confiscation of their property are both unconstitutional and mischievous and can be defended neither by the laws of war nor by civil law.

THE DEATH ROLL.

Mrs. Minerva C. Davis.

Mrs. Minerva C. Davis, wife of T. H. Davis, a prominent attorney, died at her home, corner of Peebles and Tuscarora streets, Wilkinsburg, yesterday evening at 6 o'clock. She was born in Elizabeth, this state, but had lived in Pittsburgh and vicinity all her life, and had resided in Wilkinsburg for the last three years. She attended the East End Presbyterian church. She is survived by her husband, who has been a member of the Allegheny county bar for the last 25 years; two sons, one of them Herbert A., who is also a member of the bar, and one daughter.

Abraham Hunsberger.

Abraham Hunsberger, aged 77 years, of Berkleyville, Venango county, died yesterday at the home of his son-in-law, E. F. Laucks, principal of the North Braddock high school, No. 17 Moody street, Braddock. He was born at Pleasant Grove, and later moved to Berkleyville, where he had resided for 52 years. He is survived by two sons and six daughters.

Henry Hart.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Henry Hart, capitalist, who formerly controlled the Third avenue street railway, died this morning. He had been ill but a few days. Hart was 90 years old. It was a great blow to him a few years ago when stock jobbers forced his railroad into the hands of receivers. Hart lost a lot of money and the road, too, as the Metropolitan Street Railroad Company soon gobbled it up.

Capt. Robert H. Anderson.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—A cablegram received at the war department today from Gen. Chaffee at Manila, announces the death from pneumonia of Capt. Robert H. Anderson of the Ninth Infantry. Capt. Anderson was appointed to the army in 1884 from civil life, being credited to Georgia.

Mrs. Anna Elra Mitchell.

BUTLER, PA., Nov. 7.—Mrs. Anna Elra Mitchell, wife of Editor Charles Mitchell, and only daughter of Col. John M. Thompson, died this morning at her home, Minneapolis, Minn., aged 43 years. She was a sister of Attorneys O. D. Thompson of Allegheny and William C. Thompson of Butler.

Mrs. William Hagan.

Mrs. William Hagan, aged 51 years, died at her home, No. 444 John street, Braddock yesterday after a long illness. The deceased had resided in Braddock for 30 years. She is survived by her husband.

FOUNDER'S DAY

after too long an interval, he has consented to respond on another day. In so saying too little when we advance the claim that we possess one of the masterly artists of the age, in the man, whom we all delight to honor, and whose name for a generation has been a household word, Mr. Joseph Jefferson.

No sooner had Mr. Jefferson stepped to his feet than the audience started a round of hand clapping. The veteran actor was dressed in perfectly fitting afternoon attire, and stood bowing and smiling, waiting for the applause to cease. To see him in every-day life, although he does not show the weight of his 72 years, it is almost impossible to believe that he can make up and act the sprightly old part, "Golig an Ayr" in "Tend Me Five Shillings." Mr. Jefferson said:

Thanked for Their Greeting.

At the very beginning I must thank you for this greeting. There is nothing in the world so stimulating to an actor as such a round of applause. To an actor in my present position it answers a double purpose. It not only proves to me that I am welcomehere, but it gives me a chance to think of what I am going to say next. Now by that remark I do not wish you to think that I came here unprepared. On the contrary I am prepared, for it would be the height of discourtesy to accept such an invitation as brings me here, and then come with an effort to make impromptu remarks.

Preparation is most important in every walk of life, but in none more important on the stage. Of course the best things on the stage are those that happen. But suppose they do not happen. An actor must be prepared with absolutely everything. In fact, in the arts such preparation is not entirely necessary. The painter can change his picture before he sends it to an art jury, provided it does not suit him; a sculptor can change his statue model before he puts it into the gleaming marble; the writer can change his book before it is finally sent to the publisher.

The actor is not so fortunate. His exhibit is practically begun, developed and terminated in the presence of the audience, who must approve or disapprove of his work. An anecdote comes into my mind now—how as though I did not intend to tell it—illustrative of the value of preparation. An actor whom many of you will remember, W. J. Florence, was concerned in the affair with me. It was on the occasion of our last appearance in English comedy in New York. Mr. Florence came to me on the morning of the last day and inquired whether I did not think it would be advisable to have a curtain call. I agreed with him and an appropriate speech was concocted.

We arranged to step before the footlights, when Mr. Florence would make a remark, to my seeming surprise and consternation. I was to reply in kind. We were sure of success.

The Call That Did Not Come.

The close of the performance found us nervous but prepared. Other members of the company, and a number of our friends, who knew of the special speech prepared, were gathered in the wings to hear us. The curtain rung down and we waited. The expected curtain call did not come.

Certain things have occurred today that I regard as novel circumstances, and which I think you will be interested in hearing about. After my warm reception in this hall two years ago, at the time of the preliminaries of your art gallery here, I determined to send one of my own paintings as a contribution to your collection. The painting has been shipped, but Mr. Beatty tells me it has not arrived yet. Now you are very fortunate today in hearing your august guest. And you are fortunate in another thing. My painting has not arrived.

Once a connoisseur was looking over a collection of pictures. He came to a miserable canvass, one that was painful in its crudity. Turning to a member of the committee and pointing to the picture he asked, "Why did you hang that picture?" "Because we could not find the artist," responded the member. Now as my own picture has not arrived to be hung, I am safe.

In years past I remember of two speeches which I heard made before the curtain. On one occasion Mr. Florence was playing what is known as the New England circuit, going from town to town night after night and playing in one city Mr. Florence was called before the curtain to make a speech. He started out with considerable fear and trembling before his reception, and then started in to tell how his early youth had been spent in their city, concluding something like this: "I feel that the success of my business in life is due to the people of Hartford." There was a moment's silence, and a man in the front row said, "This is New Haven, Mr. Florence."

On another occasion at a theater in a country town it became necessary to change the program at the last moment, owing to the death in the middle of the bill of a leading man. The local manager was worried over the enforced change, and indulged rather freely during the evening in recounting his woes to his friends. When the play was announced, it was stated that he was not certain in either walk, talk or bearing. He started out bravely enough and explained and apologized in a breath for the unfortunate circumstance which called him, and as he stood wobbling about on the stage he repeated again and again the cause of the change. He seemed to fear that his audience was not sympathetic, and finally, in a last effort to square himself he said: "Well, she is dead, but let me assure you, ladies and gentlemen, while I have anything to do with this house, it shall never occur again."

DR. BOYLE'S INVOCATION.

Presiding Elder of Pittsburgh District of the Methodist Episcopal Church Makes Closing Prayer.

After the last strains from the great organ had echoed and died away in the hall, Mr. Frew introduced the Rev. Thomas N. Boyle, D. D., presiding elder of the Pittsburgh district of the Methodist Episcopal church. He delivered the following invocation:

Almighty God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, and our Father, we approach Thee with reverence, expressing the gratitude of our hearts for all Thy benefits to us, for forgiving our iniquities, for crowning us with loving kindness, and for the renewal of Thy mercies day by day.

We are grateful to Thee for our heritage—this fair land, our benign government and our patriotic rulers. As the shadow of the great tragedy still hangs over us we humbly invoke Thy blessing upon the entire nation, upon Thy servant, the president of the United States, and his cabinet; upon our national congress and upon the judiciary. Inasmuch as our hearts are still bleeding we ask for the application of the healing balm. Especially would we pray for the widow of the lamented president. May Thine everlasting arms be underneath her and may Thy fatherly care be over her.

We are grateful to Thee for this city—this wonderful hive of industry and thrift, with its population of sturdy people. For its many citizens of genius, business capacity and philanthropy. We thank Thee for the public spirited citizen who founded this institution and made this day possible—for his capacity to accumulate wealth, and for his disposition to dispose of it for the benefit of humanity, and for this institution he has established in giving it for the development of art, science, philosophy, and literature for the improvement of all classes of people. May Thy choicest blessings be richly bestowed upon him and all who are associated with him.

We are grateful to Thee for inspiring many of the active business men of our community to devote their time and talents to the management of this great institution. May Thy blessing be upon them in planning and directing everything that relates to its future.

We are grateful to Thee for Thy servant, who, in the order of Thy providence, is present to address us on this occasion—for his career as a private and public citizen, and for his exemplary conduct in illustrating the genius of our government that aims to place all classes upon an equality. We pray that Thou wilt bless him and make him a blessing to us. May we have easy access to our hearts and minds and may his instruction be heeded by us.

May Thy grace rest upon all this audience, and upon the people who are without, and may all the exercises of this hour contribute to an enlargement of interest in everything that will improve the material, intellectual and moral welfare of the people.

Graciously pardon all our sins and sustain us by Thy grace in all that is pure, through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

THE YEAR'S WORK REVIEWED

Col. Samuel Harden Church Shows Flattering Progress in His Report as Secretary.

Col. Samuel Harden Church, secretary of the board of trustees, read the annual report. Col. Church said:

Frederic Archer, whose name, like Abou Ben Adhem's, "led all the rest" on past Founder's days, died on October 22, 1901. The trustees had invited him to play the organ this afternoon and he had consented to do so. He gave about 450 recitals on the organ since the dedication of the building, playing to more than 300,000 persons. It was his aim to popularize classical music, and while he played the whole range of standard composers, he would touch no works but those of masters. The people must come up to his art; he would not go down to their ignorance. This was a persistent purpose, and he conquered gloriously.

The Library.—The Central library and its five branches now contain about 127,000 volumes. Of these 90,124 are in the Central library, 12,500 in the Lawrenceville branch, 12,200 in the Wylie avenue branch, 7,200 in the West End branch, 7,200 in the Mt. Washington branch and 1,700 in the Hazelwood branch. There were issued for home use during the year from the Central library and branches 481,000 volumes, an increase of 81,000; and the reading rooms were used by 541,000 persons, an increase of 61,000.

The Museum.—During the past year an expedition was sent to northeastern America under the direction of Dr. Holland, to make ornithological collections. They visited New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, the Magdalen Islands, Bird Rock in the St. Lawrence, and Labrador, and collected some good material. The work of the museum in the section of paleontology was carried on during the past summer under the general supervision of J. B. Hatcher, with three parties in the great western field, besides keeping a force at work in the laboratory. The results of their persistent work is given to the scientific world through the regular publications of the museum, namely, the Annals and the Memoirs, which have been successfully inaugurated.

The Art Gallery.—The annual exhibition of paintings which opens today is a worthy successor to past collections. Works have come from America, England, Scotland, France, Spain, Holland, Norway, Belgium, Italy, Switzerland, Germany and South America. The international art jury, elected by the contributors, comprised some of the best painters in the world.

There have been generous gifts to all branches of the institute. It is hoped that the habit of giving for the good of the public will grow apace. At a recent dinner party a man of wealth, now in this audience, said that he would give a picture to the Carnegie gallery, provided a woman who sat beside him would give another. She accepted the challenge, provided further, that all other able persons should be called upon on this Founder's day to do likewise. The promise to make such a call was then made and is now redeemed.

THOUSANDS WERE AT THE RECEPTION

Great Crowds Anxious to Shake Hands With Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland.

The public reception tendered to former President and Mrs. Grover Cleveland in the Carnegie Institute yesterday afternoon was a notable event. Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland stood in the western part of the main art gallery, from 4 o'clock until 5:30, and shook hands with about 5,000 persons.

Commenting on the immense crowd after the reception, Mr. Cleveland said: "I was just a little out of practice. I have not received so many people since leaving the White House. I suppose I shook hands with almost 5,000 persons. This would mean something over 50 persons each minute. In Washington I have shaken hands with 65 persons per minute, but, of course, we had better facilities for handling the crowds than you have here. The people were most congenial and I must certainly pay to them the highest tribute. They were patient and did not delay. I am very glad to have met so many interesting Pittsburghers, and I know the reception was pleasing in every manner to Mrs. Cleveland."

Immediately after the Founder's day exercises in the music hall the reception began. Mrs. Cleveland left her private box in the hall and joined her husband in the main hall of the library. Here the party was joined by several members of the board of directors of the institute and their wives, and all marched upstairs to the art galleries.

Receiving Party Enters.

Prof. John A. Brashear and Mrs. Brashear entered the reception room, followed by Mr. and Mrs. William N. Frew. Then came Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland, and following them were Archie W. Alexander, Col. Samuel Harden Church and Mrs. Church, John Caldwell and Mrs. Caldwell and Robert W. Allen. Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland were stationed at the head of the party. Mrs.

ALL OVER BUT THE DECISION

JUDGE ADVOCATE OWNS TO SCHLEY'S BRAVERY

Accuses the Former Commodore of Lack of Decision and to Error of Conduct, Not of Judgment in the Retrograde Movement.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 7.—After sittings covering 40 days, the Schley court of inquiry today at 3:45 p. m. adjourned its last public session. To Capt. S. C. Lemly, the judge advocate, had been assigned the duty of making the closing argument in the case.

The court today declined to grant the request made yesterday by Attorney Theall, acting for Admiral Sampson, that the remarks of Capt. Parker concerning the fact that the Spanish steamer Colon lay in the harbor at Santiago for some hours after the arrival there of Admiral Sampson, be stricken from the record. Admiral Dewey, writing for the court, said this action has been taken after careful consideration.

Today's session began at 2 o'clock, and the entire time was devoted to Capt. Lemly's address. Speaking of Commodore Schley's conduct, Capt. Lemly said:

From my knowledge of the man, having served under his command on two cruises, I have never believed, nor do I claim from the evidence, that personal misconduct—or, to call a spade a spade, cowardice—was exhibited by Commodore Schley in any part of his career as commander-in-chief of the flying squadron; but I submit with regret that in the passage from Key West to Cienfuegos, while at the latter port en route to the southward of Santiago, without settled destination in the retrograde movement, in the return to the vicinity of Santiago and in the affair of May 31, the commodore exhibited unsteadiness in purpose and in push and failure to obey orders.

This statement was made toward the close of Capt. Lemly's speech.

Love Feast at the Close.

After adjournment the members of the court, Admiral Schley and counsel lingered for a time about the hall in which they recently have spent so much of their time, and there was many affectionate words of farewell spoken. Admiral Schley, as usual, was called upon to receive the greetings of a number of admirers and a hundred or more people waited at the door of the building to bid him adieu.

Capt. Lemly, during his speech, contended that McCalla's memorandum was delivered to Commodore Schley May 22, and he charged the commodore with failure to attempt direct communication with the insurgents after its receipt.

Speaking of dispatch No. 7, the "Dear Sir Percy letter," he said: "Mr. Rayner argued at length to show that order No. 7 was an order to remain at Cienfuegos. This we do absolutely grant, and we have never contended otherwise. Misunderstanding may have arisen as to our contention that a certain word should be 'Santiago.' That word, however, was not in connection with any order to go there, and the order is fully recognized as being an order to remain at Cienfuegos."

Referring to the information given Commodore Schley by the scout boats upon the commodore's arrival off Santiago, May 26, Capt. Lemly said:

Information About Cervera's Fleet.

Some of the scouts had been off Santiago since the 21st of May. This information of Sigsbee's, then, meant that if the Spanish squadron had been there in the first place, it had not left. The dispatches will clearly show that there was no doubt as to the Spaniards having been at Santiago. The only doubt that ever existed was as to whether they had left.

It has been intimated by counsel that had the applicant been otherwise advised by Capt. Sigsbee, or had he been in any way advised by Capt. Wise, he might not have undertaken the retrograde movement; but both of these officers testify that when they came up with the flying squadron the retrograde movement was already begun, and Sigsbee has testified that the questions principally discussed on board the flagship were not of the whereabouts of the Spanish fleet, but the question of coaling.

As to the question of disobedience of orders, counsel has properly stated that a report that orders would be disobeyed does not constitute disobedience. Commodore Schley's conduct is being scrutinized in the light of the facts, and not alone in the light of the statements which he made concerning his intentions. Counsel has cited the disobedience of Nelson; but at Copenhagen Nelson disobeyed orders and went for the enemy. The applicant's disobedience, if proved, will be shown to be in delaying in bringing himself into the presence of the enemy.

Speaking of the alleged colloquy on the Brooklyn during the battle, in which Commander Schley was alleged to have exclaimed, "D—— the Texas," Capt. Lemly said:

As to the testimony upon the point whether this substantial exchange of remarks really occurred, we have Hodgson's sworn statement before this court, his statement in the investigation before Capt. Chadwick, and his several letters to the applicant, in which he adheres to the substantial accuracy of the newspaper report as printed.

Slowly, but Not Cautiously.

The commodore's orders directed that he proceed with all dispatch, but cautiously, to Santiago. He certainly proceeded slowly; but "cautiously" did not weaken the force of the words, "all dispatch." The great military necessity at this time was to find and check the enemy's fleet. Caution was needed lest it might pass undetected to Cienfuegos, or lest it might be stumbled upon without preparation, if neither carried lights. For these reasons, the greatest caution demanded all dispatch, because the timely reaching of Santiago limited to the utmost such chances. Certainly the flying squadron did not leave with dispatch, nor with caution, as shown particularly by the fact with regard to the latter condition, that she was using the Arbois system of signals for hours after getting under way. It would appeal that there was little to prevent its departure for the eastward from being discovered and in due course communicated to Santiago.

Capt. Lemly admitted that the weather on the voyage was bad for the smaller vessels, particularly the Eagle, and said the speed of the squadron was slowed in order that they might keep up. He contended, however, that if that vessel was to be sent away, she should have been so sent at the time when she was causing the delay, and not when the voyage was practically completed and the weather improving.

He considered the retrograde movement was undertaken "without sufficient or decisive steps being taken to ascertain whether the Spanish fleet was actually in the harbor of Santiago, leaving a mouth of the harbor unwatched and Cervera free to escape, with the possibility of his making a descent upon our coast, the moral, to say nothing of the material effect of which, it is impossible to over-estimate." Continuing, he said:

It matters not what Capt. Sigsbee or Pilot Nunes told Commodore Schley. If Nunez exhibited then no greater acumen than when before this court, the information he supplied should have been given little weight. Whatever opinion they may have given the commodore as to the presence of the Spanish squadron in the harbor of Santiago, the commodore was alone responsible for the retrograde movement. It was his duty to ascertain in a certainty whether the Spanish ships were in the harbor, an obligation which no negative information of Capt. Sigsbee's could remove or even modify.

Capt. Lemly contended that the dispatch conveying positive information of the presence of the Spaniards must have been delivered to Commodore Schley, notwithstanding his denial, because he considered it "inconceivable that having it, Capt. Cotton should not have communicated its contents to the commodore."

Here Capt. Lemly quoted in full Commodore Schley's "Cannot obey orders" dispatch to the department. "Disobedience of orders," he said, "may be an imperative and glorious duty; but, if it be not justified by the facts, it cannot be condoned by terming it an error of judgment. This was not an error of judgment; it was an error of conduct."

Reconnoissance Not a Success.

Regarding the reconnoissance, Capt. Lemly asked, could the strength of the enemy's fire and the caliber of his guns have been successfully developed by such distant firing? Had the enemy heavy guns unknown to the attacking force, he should not have been tempted to show the fact, in view of the range employed. His game would have been to deceive his assailants into coming closer, either then or on another occasion; but the weight of the evidence is that, even as a reconnoissance, the affair was futile. Concerning the battle of July 3, the speaker said:

I have never doubted, and the evidence adduced confirms my view in this respect, that the Brooklyn, as a ship, did conspicuous duty in this battle. On the other hand, I submit that the evidence shows that it was a captains' fight, and without disparagement of Commodore Schley's personal conduct on that occasion, that there was no such concerted action of the vessels engaged as to indicate their control by any one person. All evidently strove to do their utmost, and thus was accomplished one of the grandest naval victories ever won.

Discussing the Brooklyn loop, Capt. Lemly expressed the opinion, based upon evidence, that in turning to starboard when all the other American vessels turned to port, the Brooklyn endangered not only the Texas, but other vessels as well. It was, he said, clearly established that the Texas stopped, and that she reversed one if not both of her engines. The responsibility for this move, he argued, rested entirely upon Commodore Schley.

"It is well known that unexpected injury from friends is far more demoralizing in action than from the enemy, always to be expected," said the speaker. And think of the effect upon the enemy of a turn with starboard helm, which appears to have been disregarded."

The judge advocate closed his speech with these words:

I trust that I may be pardoned if I remind you, gentlemen, that the first importance of the matter before you is not as they relate to any individual, but as they concern the naval service. It is for you to lay down a standard of conduct, to be followed in future similar cases—a standard such as that set by our great naval commanders, like John Paul Jones, Decatur, Perry, Farragut, the Porters and others. A sense of propriety forbids my mentioning the living.

With the conclusion of Capt. Lemly's remarks, the court at 3:45 p. m. adjourned with the intention of holding no more public sessions.

Kindergarten Rummage Sale.

The rummage sale conducted by the Pittsburgh and Allegheny Free Kindergarten association is progressing with unexpected success. Ready sale is being found for all the second-hand goods so far received, and new supplies continue to be donated. If the supply is not entirely exhausted Friday evening, the sale will be continued on Saturday. People are attending the sale from all over the two cities. One woman traveled 20 miles to get some of the bargains. A young man yesterday bought a complete outfit for less than $5. He got a suit for $2, hat for 15 cents and shoes, hose, neckties and other wearing apparel at similar rates.

SOCIETY.

THE DINNER and supper served by the ladies of the Pittsburgh and Allegheny Rescue band in Old City hall yesterday was a success in every way. It was attended by many prominent people of the two cities, and it brought a good round sum of money into the treasury of the band. About 1,200 tickets were sold and there will be a nice balance over all expenses. All who partook of the meals expressed themselves as well pleased. The officers of the band hope to make these dinners an annual event.

A Pan-American Reading.

A delightful reading was given by Mrs. M. I. Coffin-Graff at her home in Lehigh avenue yesterday morning on "Ethnology and the Midway." It was the third of a series of four drawing room lectures by Mrs. Graff on the Pan-American exposition. Mrs. Graff, after an introductory talk on ethnology, led her auditors through the midway, beginning at Nuremburg, winding through "Polly Lane" and finally passing out of the gates. The score or more women present were delighted with the lecture. Miss Elsie Graff has fitted up a "den" for use in her art work and the many clever curios and sketches, some from the Pan-American midway, were inspected by those who attended the lecture by Mrs. Graff.

A Wedding Announced.

Mrs. Alexander L. Hawkins, widow of the Tenth regiment commander, has announced the approaching marriage of her daughter, Miss Jessie Benton, to Robert Weyand Darrah. The ceremony will be performed in the First Presbyterian church, Washington, Pa., Thursday evening, November 14, at 6 o'clock. Mr. Darrah is a well-known attorney at Beaver, Pa. The Rev. Dr. James D. Moffat will perform the ceremony.

Notes of Society.

The Crickets held their second dance last evening in the South Highland avenue auditorium.

Willis Matthews Scott and Ralph H. Taylor gave a stag party at the Scott home, Rebecca street, East End, last evening.

The women of the Ad. Zion English Lutheran church, Forty-fourth street, will hold a bazar in Keane's auditorium Friday and Saturday evenings.

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Copeland, Kirkpatrick avenue, Allegheny, have announced that their eldest daughter, Emma Louise, will be married to Harry L. Mesler of Indianapolis, November 20. The ceremony will take place at 7 o'clock in the evening at the home in Kirkpatrick avenue, the Rev. Dr. D. S. Kennedy officiating.

TELLS A STORY OF SAD ABUSE

Physician's Alleged Brutality Brought Out in a Divorce Case.

REFUSED WIFE MEDICAL AID WHEN ILL

Mrs. Greenfield Says Her Husband Beat Her, Threw Her Down Stairs, Soaked Her With Cold Water and Refused Her Change of Clothing.

Mrs. Clina Greenfield in her testimony in a divorce suit filed against Willard T. Greenfield, formerly a Homewood physician, tells a story of continued abuse. They were married October 30, 1900, and the respondent says she was compelled to leave her husband because of his violent treatment. She also accuses Greenfield of drunkenness.

Mrs. Greenfield stated she was afraid of her husband because of his actions toward her. She testified that upon March 15 last, he locked the house from the inside, then threw her down on the floor, twisting her arms, after which he threw her down stairs. Then, she says, he threw two buckets of cold water over her and refused to allow her to change her clothes, with the result that she had a chill. The libellant says she made her escape from the house and when she returned for her clothing two days later her husband threatened to shoot her.

Mrs. Greenfield declares that her husband denied he was the father of their child, and at its birth made her believe that she was going to die, refusing her a physician's aid and not attending to her wants himself. She says her husband had a habit of locking her in the house and upon two occasions nailed the doors. She declared he refused to allow her to eat on several occasions and could push her about the room until her body was bruised. She declared also that the respondent struck her with a stove lid lifter and cut up her clothing with a pen knife, compeling her to leave the house with her attire in shreds.

WANTS RAILROAD OUSTED.

Equity Suit Against Carnegie Company Argued in Supreme Court.

Arguments were made yesterday upon the last cases on the list of the October term of the supreme court, and it is possible that body will rise today. One of the cases heard was that of the Windsor Glass Company, appellant, against the Carnegie Company and others, from common pleas court No. 2 of this county. The action was one in equity for a decree to the effect that the Union railroad is not in good faith operating a public railroad, and the defendants have no privilege to occupy the plaintiff's land. Other Allegheny cases heard were:

Common pleas court No. 1—John Rebman, Jr., appellant, against the borough of Carlton school district, an action to have a bond issue declared void.

Common pleas No. 2—Shoemaker & Co., appellant, against John H. Dean and others, on action on a note.

Common pleas No. 3—Safe Deposit and Trust Company, trustee of the estate of Hannah Wood, and others against Anna M. Wood, an appeal of Nellie W. Wood from a decree in partition proceedings.

Several Small Estates Go to a Decedent's Relatives.

The will of Jane A. Bradley, late of Pittsburgh, was filed. This is left in trust to William C. Bradley and Attorney George R. Wallace, to be controlled as they see fit. The income is to be divided between the decedent's daughters, Sarah L. Bradley and Margaret E. B. Webster. At their deaths the estate goes to their surviving issue.

The will of Andrew English of Pine township was filed. An estate worth $8,000 is bequeathed to his wife, Anna C. English, and at her death it goes to their two children.

By the will of Catherine Haw, late of Shaler township, several small bequests are left to relatives, after which the residue of a $3,000 estate goes to all the heirs share alike.

A decree for distribution in the estate of David McKee shows a balance of $417 75.

Miller Wants Judgment Opened.

In the matter of the foreclosure proceedings of the trustees of the estate of Charles J. Clarke against Florence C. Miller, in which Miller's one-quarter interest in the Monongahela House property, is to be sold today, Miller yesterday asked for a rule upon the plaintiffs to show cause why part of the judgment should not be opened. He says the amount of this judgment is too large, as he is not responsible for the attorney's commission of $1,822, and askes that the judgment as to this sum be opened. The rule was granted.

A verdict of $3,484 80 was awarded to Mary Baker in common pleas court No. 3 against her father, Nicholas Nolte, for her services as housekeeper and for taking care of her father and his wife during illness. She was to receive $5 a week and an additional $5 a week for nursing. She asked for $5,917 05, but the statute of limitations cut down the amount.

Robert Richardson was given a verdict of $250 against the United Traction Company in common pleas court No. 3 for having been ejected from a crowded car of the defendant company after having refused to move up towards the front. After the jury had been sworn, Thomas Murphy, the seventh man, was excused because he stated he was the father of the motorman on the car.

C. L. Beinsz filed a bill in equity against the Pitcairn & Wilmerding Street Railway Company to restrain the defendant from laying tracks on the state road in Patton township and asking that they be compelled to remove the tracks already down. It is claimed that the company has not received the consent of the property owners or from the plaintiff to lay its tracks in front of their property.

CHURCH GYMNASIUM.

Young Men and Women of Eighth Presbyterian Church, Allegheny, Use Church Basement for One.

The Young Men's association of the Eighth United Presbyterian church of Allegheny has fitted up the basement of the church as a gymnasium and installed the necessary apparatus for physical culture. Over 100 members of the church are now enjoying its advantages.

Some time ago a movement was started to organize a branch of the Young Men's Christian Association in the Perrysville avenue district, but the plan was abandoned. The members of the association secured permission from the elders of the church to use the basement as a gymnasium and reading room, and have fitted it up for that purpose.

A class of 40 young men occupies the gymnasium three evenings a week. No physical director has been secured, but the work is now in charge of Arthur Wyman. In the afternoons boys under 15 years of age, to the number of 35, fill the gymnasium. Thursday evening is devoted to the young women of the church. Under the direction of Miss Edmundson of the Central Y. W. C. A. 60 young women use the apparatus. The reading rooms and gymnasium are open to members of the church at all times, except when it would conflict with the religious services.

It is the intention of the association to install more apparatus and add entensively to the library. The work has the indorsement of the pastor, the Rev. W. L. Wishart.

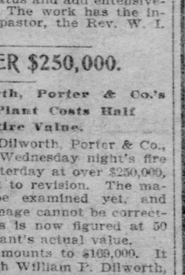
ST. VITUS' DANCE

Mrs. Cooper writes: "I feel like saying to everyone, Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer has saved my life."



Doctors said she could not be cured after they had treated her for over four years. Her case was a hopeless one until she used Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer—it cured her.

"When 16, the trouble was aggravated by fits which occurred at certain periods each month. During these four years nothing helped me. Father talked with several leading physicians of Lima, Ohio, all of whom pronounced my case hopeless. Finally, Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer was recommended and I began to use it, growing better at once. The improvement was wonderful, quieting my nerves until I truly felt like a new person. I feel like saying to everyone, 'Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer has saved my life.' Mrs. Lena Cooper, Cleveland, Ohio."

There is no form of nervous disease from Sleeplessness to Nervous Prostration that will not yield to Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer. Proof will be sent to anyone making the request.

LIVELY DOINGS IN FOOTBALL

Many Fine Games Scheduled to Be Played on Local Gridiron Tomorrow.

FINALLY DECIDED ON OFFICIALS

Williams and Arthur Poe to Act Saturday—Stars Shaping Up to Give Lalus a Tearing Up—W. U. P. Ready for Geneva.

After one day of rest spent in sightseeing, the Homestead Stars were out on the Exposition park gridiron again yesterday afternoon, and spent three hours doing the liveliest kind of football stunts. There was not one Star absent from the practice, and all of them were in uniform and claimed to be free from ache or pain. Big Texas Morse, who has been on the hospital list for two weeks with a crippled leg, was about the liveliest one of the bunch.

Captain Fultz started the practice going with an association football game between picked teams, one of which was captained by himself and the other by Pete Overfield. This game proved to be a very best kind of training, as the players become very much interested and the work therefore seems easy. Overfield led his side the 'Varsity team and Linnein, the graduate of the Woods Run University, was its goalkeeper. This contest was won by the Overfields team by a score of two goals to one. The feature of the game was Weinstein's play in kicking a goal for his opponents. The ball rolled in front of the posts and Weinstein made a vicious kick at it but missed the oval with his toe. In swinging his leg back, his heel caught the ball and it went between the posts scoring a point for the other side.

Are Not After Lalus.

The Stars followed up the ball game with a signal practice that was both vigorous and clean cut. The Stars have served notice on Coach Lalus to be on the lookout as they are going after his seven goals and hard on Saturday afternoon. Dave Fultz says his men will need some vigorous work to prepare them for their game against Lafayette on the following Saturday, and they will endeavor to get this work on Saturday and at the same time get even for that touchdown scored by Lalus in the first game. The Lalus eleven is also putting in some hard preparatory work and the East Enders say they will be in shape to give the Stars a good run for the money. Chauncey Stewart is requested to call on Jas. Lalus, 29 Frankstown avenue, East end, tonight at 9 o'clock to make arrangements to see as the Lalus team's special in the game Saturday with Homestead.

The Washington and Jefferson and Cleveland managers have finally fixed up their differences regarding officials to preside over Saturday's game at Exposition park. The tangle threatened to be a ugly one, but it has been straightened out and the men named to preside over the game are Carl Williams, Pennsylvania's famous quarterback, who formerly played here on D. C. and A. C., and Arthur Poe of the Homestead Stars. The selections are wise ones, as better officials could not be found.

Wash.-Jeff. Working Hard.

From Washington, Pa., comes word that the Washington and Jefferson team, nothing that next Saturday's game with Bucknell will have with her followings, has been out full blast this week. Monday and Tuesday's practices were anything but satisfactory, but the coaches, after pointing out the weak places found out in last Saturday's game with Ohio Meds, got one of the best practices of the season out of the team Wednesday evening.

The scrubs were a very husky lot of kids, all loyal to their old alma mater and gave the 'varsity a hard tussle but in the very best team that could be turned out, one which would give any team its worth of its money, and would test lots of teams representing colleges in Western Pennsylvania. The 'varsity worked well together and scored almost at will, everybody getting in the game and helping to pile up the lightning many yards after the man was tackled which would otherwise have been lost ground. The boys lined up fast and played fast and furious.

Several changes are contemplated, and in practice they look like betterment of the team. Gibson was tried at half back and showed up to an advantage. Brooks was played at end and will make something hustle before the season is over. Several more are making decided improvements, but there is need for such improvement from several of these men. Last Saturday's game showed that W. and J. can play a game through a rapid pace, the players being fresh at the end of the game as when they started. It makes no difference how long the halves to W. and J. and the followers of the team or of the game in general can depend on good long halves in their game next Saturday with Bucknell. W. and J. has the saying of the length of halves.

Won't Mind the Weather.

W. U. P. will play Geneva college Saturday at Beaver Falls be it rain or shine. The football team will leave at 9 o'clock, but the time for the departure of the special train which is to convey the rooters has not been determined yet. The institution will probably turn out to the number of several hundred, and a special rate has been procured and there is every evidence of a hard game. Geneva and W. U. P. have defeated all rivals so far and are now to meet for the first time. There is not much to choose between them, as W. U. P. defeated Pittsburgh college by a larger score than Geneva, while Geneva scored higher against Allegheny than did the locals. McCready, W. U. P.'s star quarter has recovered from his illness, and will materially participate in the game. His absence would have materially affected the playing of the team.

BUCKNELL WORKING HARD.

Coach Hoskins Is Preparing His Players for a Tough Struggle on Saturday.

LEWISBURG, PA., Nov. 7.—(Special.)—Coach Hoskins is putting the Bucknell university eleven through some hard practice this week, in anticipation of a tough struggle with the St. J. college at Pittsburgh on Saturday next. The coach and the players unite in the belief that the contest will be one of the hardest the orange and blue has been in this season, but all are confident of victory.

The Bucknell eleven is the best in the history of the institution, and the record it has made has placed it among the leading of the smaller college teams. Of six games played it has won three. The games were lost to Cornell, 6 to 0; Indians, 6 to 5; Pennsylvania, 17 to 0. Games were won from Wyoming seminary, Lehigh, Gettysburg and Gettysburg colleges. The score in the Gettysburg game was 6 to 0, which is a source of great satisfaction to Bucknell admirers, as Gettysburg defeated Lehigh easily the same week. W. & J. having played none of these teams, it is hard to compare the strength of the two elevens which will battle at Pittsburgh on Saturday next. Bucknell will probably be somewhat crippled in the backfield by the absence of Barrett at end, and McCormick at fullback, both of whom were injured in Saturday's game. McMahon, the Pittsburgh boy, will be seen at right end next season, will probably be here in the game after a week's layoff on account of illness. McMahon is playing the game of his life this year, having made a splendid showing. The Bucknell ground is laid in the tackle-back formation. This style, however, of play will be used a little on Saturday, as Coach Hoskins thinks he will be able to accomplish more with a guard-back formation. Besides McMahon there are two Western Pennsylvania boys in the team, Douglass of Beaver and Smiley of Greenville.

JEFFRIES HAS BETTING CALL

THE CHAMPION IS THE FAVORITE WITH MONEY MEN.

The Odds in Frisco Are 5 to 2 on the Champion—Jeffries in Great Shape, and Ruhlin Is Also in Fine Condition and Says He Will Be There at the Finish—Tommy Ryan Comes Forward With His Opinion.

(Special to The Pittsburgh Gazette.)

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., Nov. 7.—So great a clamor has been raised by Champion Jeffries' friends and admirers to see him go through his exercises that he will leave Harbin Springs for Oakland next Saturday. Most of his work at Oakland will be done indoors. Reports say he was never in better trim and that he has given special attention to hardening the muscles of his left arm, which failed him in his last fight. Despite the interest in the election, Ruhlin's quarters have been visited by hundreds of sports anxious to get a line on him. All report that Gus is in great form, and that Madden is confident he will win out.

Now that the interest in the election has subsided, betting has commenced on the fight. The odds today were 5 to 2 on Jeffries, but the sporting sages opine that before the week ends the betting will be but 2 to 1.

Says He Will Mix It Up.

Jeff's announcement that he proposes to mix things from the tap of the gong has stimulated interest in the contest, for in all of his previous fights Jeff has played a waiting game and thus detracted from the spectacular features that he now promises. If he goes in for slugging from the start, this battle between giants will be a memorable ring contest.

Unless the unforeseen happens, neither man will have any excuse to offer on the score of condition. The question that sports are asking is, Can Jeffries knock out Ruhlin in the stipulated number of rounds? Even the Ruhlin admirers only expect the Akron giant to be on his feet at the end of the last round.

Assuming that the fight should go the limit and that Ruhlin, if anything, might have a shade the better of the contest, it would take an extraordinary referee to decide against the champion of the world. That is one of the reasons why men are laying long odds on Jeffries. Of course, the main reason is that Jeffries has a much better record.

He is younger and has never yet been put out in any contest. Ruhlin may prove to be a better man than generally anticipated, but he has several blemishes on his escutcheon.

It looks as if Jeffries should be able to put up the battle of his life when he steps into the roped arena on the night of November 15. Always a safe fighter, he has recently improved wonderfully in aggressiveness, and the people who crowd into the Ruhlin-Jeffries pavilion may not see a very long fight. A meeting of big men should not last 20 rounds if both men show an inclination to mix matters. Of course, it is folly to conjecture at present, but Early Eye, Genesco, Clipper, Silver Twist, Leslie Bruce, Miss Deckis, May Blanch Herman, Wild Bess, Gay Girl, Chickadee, Tact, Pearl Finder, Avis, 110.

Fourth race, mile and 70 yards—Handicapper, 106; Lucky Star, 105; Criterion, 103; Bowen, Black Dick, 102; Lamp O'Lee, 98.

Fifth race, 5½ furlongs—Honolulu, Neither One, 109; Carringford, 108; Mileage, 104; Shandonfield, Ernest Parkham, Equalize, 102; Lemoyne, Locket, 99.

HOPE FOR A GAME.

The West Virginia Team Anxious to Meet Westminster.

MORGANTOWN, W. VA., Nov. 7.—(Special.)—Hopes of a football game at Morgantown on Saturday are high, as Westminster college, whose team is scheduled to play against the West Virginia university team, has shown no disposition to cancel the game, or otherwise disappoint the university eleven. For three Saturdays past games have been scheduled against W. V. U., but at the last moment the opposing teams cancelled by wire, and Manager Lardin was put to the expense of having all the large posters torn down. The posters gotten out Saturday make no definite announcement of a game, but are headed, in large type, "Rumors of Football." Further on the poster says the football management is not to be considered bonded by the announcement of a game, but that, Providence permitting, a game is hoped for. The players have trained so much without playing a game that they are sick. If anyone should happen to prevent the game Saturday, it will be difficult to get the team out to practice.

CLAIMS FLAG ALREADY.

Jack O'Connor Is Enthusiastic Over the Pirates.

ST. LOUIS, MO., Nov. 7.—(Special.)—Jack O'Connor is around town looking as chipper as ever. He has signed to continue as a Pirate, and O. K.'s the report that Fred Clarke has landed every one of his band. The "King" is loud in his praise of Dreyfuss and Clarke, and declares that the pair is the fairest that ever was at the helm of a ball club.

"The players were treated royally all season long," declared O'Connor, "and though the majority of them were approached by agents of the American league as early as last June, none even for a moment considered the offer. Inducements as some of them surely were. We will line up next spring just as we did the past campaign, and I am already claiming the flag."

IMP HAS TOUGH RACING LUCK

The Grand Old Mare Was Heavily Played to Win the Handicap, but Failed.

SHE WAS KEPT PINNED AGAINST RAIL

Reformer Was the Only Favorite That Could Make Good at Aqueduct—Bad Starting Spoiled Four of the Events.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Reformer at 8 to 5 was the one favorite to win at Aqueduct today. The starting, as usual, marred the sport and in four of the six races, about half the horses had no chance when the barrier was released. GLASS MAY PLAY HARVARD GAME

YALE'S FOOTBALL ADVISERS MET AND TALKED IT OVER.

Yale and Princeton Freshmen Will Not Meet Today—Harvard Team in Fine Shape for the Pennsy Game. The Tigers Got a Great Sendoff From the Princeton Students. Changes at Cornell.

(Special Telegram to The Pittsburgh Gazette.)

NEW HAVEN, CONN., Nov. 7.—Yale football advisers held a council this evening at which the question of playing Glass, the big freshman guard, in the Harvard game was again discussed. The editorial in the Harvard Crimson this morning was the gossip of the campus today, and it was thought that it would bring from Yale a reply. This evening after the meeting of the football council, Capt. Gould said that there was nothing to announce about Glass' case.

There will be no game in this city tomorrow between the Yale and Princeton freshmen football teams. The Yale youngsters arranged the game without the consent of the faculty. Today when members of the faculty saw the posters for the game being put up, they quietly notified the freshmen that, in case they played, every man on the eleven would be suspended. The freshmen pleaded but in vain. They had barely time to notify their Princeton cousins not to come.

Frank Hinkey, the famous captain of '93 and '94, arrived in New Haven today in time to take part in the coaching. This afternoon Hinkey followed the practice closely but had very little to say. Walter Camp was again on the gridiron and in the thick of the practice.

The Tigers Given a Sendoff.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 7.—(Special.)—Eleven hundred students, headed by a fife and drum corps, marched this afternoon to the Princeton gridiron as an inspiration to the 'varsity eleven. A regular line up of 15 minutes took place between the 'varsity and scrubs, resulting in one touchdown for the first eleven. It was nearly earned tally for the scrubs once, every inch of ground, holding the 'varsity for the 15 minutes before allowing them to score.

The 'varsity had their strongest aggregation on the field, including Capt. Pell and John Dewitt. Some special formations were used by the 'varsity which were enigmas for the scrub eleven to solve. The gains made by the first team were short as a rule, but steady and consistent. The 'varsity practiced their formations in the cage before the line up and considering the short time they were given they proved very effectual.

The practice on a whole showed decided improvement over that of yesterday. The fumbling was noticeably absent and the plays moved with a deadly precision. Most of the gains were through the scrub tackle and around the ends. The touchdown was made by Dawson who took Steve McClay's place at right half back.

Harvard Had Secret Practice.

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., Nov. 7.—(Special.)—Harvard had her last practice before the game with Pennsylvania this afternoon. The work was light but secret. Coach Reid deciding at the last moment to keep the team's plays and formations as unknown as possible. There was no line up, the men went through the signals only, taking 20 minutes to limber up and then going at the work with the same snap and vim that has characterized their playing all the week. All the men were in the line up and the plays were run through to the entire satisfaction of the coaches. Both Roberts and Kernan will enter the game at the start Saturday.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., Nov. 7.—(Special.)—Practice at Franklin field today was of the lightest description. The coaches were unwilling to risk injuring anyone at this late stage of the game, and the work of the afternoon consisted of punting and catching, drill in formations and finally signal practice.

All of the team practiced except Will Gardiner, who is taking a much needed rest. The work on the whole was as fast as could be desired and the men showed thorough familiarity with the plays and signals. Thomas was played at right end in place of Gardiner and he will probably have a chance in the game tomorrow.

Big Shift in Cornell's Team.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 7.—(Special.)—The 200 spectators who came down to the field this afternoon to witness the practice were treated to a big surprise. Coach Reed, becoming dissatisfied with the work of his line, had made a large shift. Both Lueder and Smith were relegated to the scrub eleven and the big freshman Waud and Emmons filled their places. In the line-up which ensued, Lueder was opposite Waud and Smith opposite Emmons, and the fiercest kind of playing resulted. Waud is a giant, standing six feet three inches, and weighs over 200 pounds. He was more than a match for his opponent and at the close of the practice it was announced that hereafter he would have a chair awaiting him at the training table.

President Dreyfuss Goes to Attend a Monument Unveiling.

President Dreyfuss of the Pittsburgh baseball club left last night for Louisville, Ky., to attend the unveiling of a $60,000 monument of Thomas Jefferson, presented to the city of Louisville by I. W. and B. Bernheim, who are brothers-in-law of Mr. Dreyfuss. The unveiling takes place tomorrow.

THE JUNIOR LEAGUE.

The Young Basketball Players Are Ready for a Very Busy Season.

The Western Pennsylvania Junior Basketball league will begin the season of 1901 with every prospect of a very successful season. The teams composing the league are Manchester, Homestead, South Side, Allegheny, and Carnegie Steel Company, all of which teams have excellent halls, and one other team to fill the vacancy caused by the withdrawal of the Boquet team, for which place there are several applications.

Last year's A. A. U. rules have again been adopted, as the managers of the Junior league teams are of the opinion that in this way individual playing is eliminated, and cleaner, faster team work will result. That the Junior league put up a very fast article of ball last year is demonstrated by the fact that Nickel, Bethel and Squires of last year's Tiger team, have signed major league contracts for this year, while it is known that Lieber, Leithead and Winderknecht, of the champion South Side team, have received good offers from several big league managers, but it seems that the ambition of the South Side boys is not as strong as their desire to stick to their friends at home. This promises well for South Sides' chances of again capturing the pennant, and is a good example to the many other basketball players in this vicinity.

Manchester is all probability will have a faster team than last year, which means that the team which beats them out will have to play a very fast game. The Allegheny railroad team showed vast improvement toward the end of last season, and Gardner's team promises to be in the hunt this year. Homestead and Carnegie Steel Company are unknown quantities, but Managers Ballard and Beithhoover can be relied upon to get teams together which will cut a figure in the pennant race.

Mr. Isaac Little has again been elected as referee-umpire, which is proof that the officiating end will be well taken care of. Each team will be limited to ten players and the schedule will probably be adopted in a short time.

LOOKING TOWRD NEW YORK.

American League Thinks It Sees a Chance for Entry.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—(Special.)—President Ban Johnson of the American league declared last night that the result of the New York election might make a lot of difference in the plans of the American league, and might alter the baseball map in no small degree. "I do not wish to say anything definite," said Ban, "but anybody who knows New York politics knows how things can be had when certain parties are in power—things which might be hard to get at other times."

This can mean only one thing—that the American league would like to knock Andrew Freedman off his metropolitan perch in Manhattan and cut into the big metropolis. The American league has long been anxious to get into New York, but the utter lack of available grounds has prevented any concerted or successful move. There was much talk some weeks ago of an American league club in New York, which was credited with securing an immutable location, and to be backed by Tim Sullivan, thus indicating a possible split between Tim and Andy, Tammanyites though both may be.

If the fusion politicians will take hold of an American league venture and go gunning for Freedman, it is figured that something will have to drop, and that a Johnson club, run by Jimmy Manning or Tom Loftus, will be seen on Manhattan field. A remark by Ban Johnson yesterday may also be taken as significant—"Seth Low is extremely friendly to baseball—thinks a great deal of the game."

It was said around American league headquarters yesterday that a new list of men grabbed over the National would be promulgated in a week or so, and that the names would surprise everybody. The National people have no rejoinder to make to this assertion.

BRADDOCK BOWLERS WON.

Both Teams Bowled in Rather Poor Form.

The North Braddock and the Brunswick bowling teams played at Braddock last night in the Carnegie A. C. alleys. The result was as follows:

North Braddock—
Westlake	144	178	139
Donovan	152	127	182
McCabe	121	157	160
A. Locks	151	127	159
Garbell	177	169	167
Totals	745	755	810
Brunswick—
Barr	118	171	180
Braid	125	127	181
Yochum	129	141	162
Hahn	98	165	99
Wilson	146	156	169
Totals	624	694	850

The highest average was made by Garbell, 174 points. The highest score was made by Donovan, 182. The Brunswicks' team did not play their regular good game, and the Braddock team was also under its average. A big crowd was present.

Association Game Called Off.

The game scheduled for to-morrow at McDonald by the new H. L. A. C. association football team will not be played owing to a mistake in dates. McDonald had scheduled game for the week following and has tomorrow's date with Washington. It is likely that the H. L. A. C. will arrange a game to-day with the Pittsburgh Field club.

INCUBATOR BABIES.

A Curiosity of Advanced Civilization.

Among barbarous peoples it is the common custom to destroy the weakling child. Even among some civilized people as in China and India the same practice obtains to a greater or less degree. In our own land science has bent its energies to the saving of the weakling baby, and to that end has devised the baby incubator, in which the temperature and every other condition which makes for the infant's growth can be perfectly controlled and regulated.

The baby incubator has directed serious attention to the fact that a great number of children are born too weak to make an effectual struggle for life, and that many mothers are unable to nourish the children born to them. Back of these facts there is the inevitable story of womanly weakness, the prenatal period spent in misery of mind and anguish of body; the period of waiting which should by all the laws of nature be one of hopeful, happy expectation, changed to a period of shrinking and dread. It is impossible that the mother can give her child what she herself does not possess. If she lacks health for one she cannot have it for two. If she is nervous, fearful, suffering, it is folly to expect that her child will be mirthful and hardy. As a rule weak and sick women will have weak and sickly children.

MATERNAL LOVE HELPLESS.

Maternal love is helpless in such circumstances. The woman who would drain her heart dry to give her child strength can only sit in impotent helplessness and watch the little flower fade.

But science does more than provide an incubator for the weakling baby. It finds the means to make weak women strong. It gives the mother strength to give her child, and make the incubator unnecessary. It restores the natural balance of health so that the days of waiting become once more days of happy expectation, and maternity is approached with the supreme confidence which comes from the possession of perfect health. In this field of scientific help for women Dr. R. V. Pierce stands pre-eminent by his success. His great medicine for women, "Favorite Prescription," has been the means of health to thousands of mothers, giving them strength in the days of waiting, making the baby's advent practically painless and by increasing the flow of the nutritive secretions, enabling the mother to nurse her child.

"I will endeavor to tell you of the many benefits I have derived from taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. B. E. Robertson, of Medicine Lodge, Barber Co., Kan. "In the fall of 1899 I was expecting to become a mother and suffered terribly with pains in the back of head; in fact I ached all over. Suffered with awful bearing-down pains; I was threatened for weeks with mishap. A lady friend told me to use Dr. Pierce's medicines. She had taken them and felt like a new woman. I began using the 'Favorite Prescription' and took four bottles before my baby came and two afterwards. I suffered almost death with my other two children, but hardly real

NEW DICKERING IN NORTHWEST

Negotiations So Important That J. P. Morgan Goes to See Vanderbilt.

RUMORED SHIFTING OF BURLINGTON

Effect of Money Situation on Stock Market—Car Famine More Serious Than Has Been Supposed. Tin Plate Opposition.

(By Private Wire to The Pittsburgh Gazette.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Wall street was greatly exercised today over a conference held at the Grand Central station between J. Pierpont Morgan and W. K. Vanderbilt, who had only yesterday returned from abroad. Apart from a reasonable certainty that this conference was in relation to the Northwestern railroad situation, the incident was prolific of gossip, because Mr. Morgan, or the "old man," as Wall street is pleased to familiarly call him, rarely leaves his office for an interview with another financier. Most people have to come to Mr. Morgan when they want to see him, and the inference in this case is that, perhaps, Mr. Morgan was more eager to see Mr. Vanderbilt than Mr. Vanderbilt was to see Mr. Morgan.

However, it was Mr. Morgan who had the novel experience of announcing himself in another's office and then having to wait awhile for an audience. This was not the fault of Mr. Vanderbilt, perhaps. He was late getting to his office; but the spectacle of Mr. Morgan waiting for anybody and cooling his heels while he waited was quite as novel for Wall street as the experience must have been uncomfortable for the banker.

No official statement was forthcoming, either, in respect to this Morgan-Vanderbilt conference, or concerning any other aspect of the Northern Pacific situation.

Possible Burlington Deal.

There was a story from Chicago that at the meeting of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, held yesterday and adjourned to November 14, there had been elected to the board E. H. Harriman, Jacob Schiff, James Stillman, H. McK. Twombley, Robert Bacon and Norman B. Ream. Although this story could not be established in fact, it was recognized in Wall street as being technically probable, and, naturally, there was animated discussion of the significance of the entry of these gentlemen into the Burlington board. Messrs. Harriman and Schiff, of course, would represent Union Pacific interests, Mr. Stillman the Rockefeller interests, Mr. Twombley the Vanderbilt interests, and in addition to Mr. Bacon strengthening the Morgan representation. Mr. Bacon might safely be classed as a Hill man.

It begins to be more and more apparent that the solution of the Northern Pacific problem will involve joint control of Burlington by Union Pacific and Morgan-Hill interests. It was Burlington, of course, that caused the trouble in the first instance, and it has been understood all along that the Harriman faction would surrender their claim on Northern Pacific in return for an equal voice in the management of Burlington.

It is equally probable that no official announcement covering the details of the agreement, if, indeed, an agreement has been reached, will be made before November 14, on which date the Burlington directors are to reconvene.

The Monetary Outlook.

It remains to be seen whether the banking interests will dare to approve of bullish stock market manipulation on a large scale, with the financial situation in its present delicate status. Although no further engagements have been made at the assay office, international bankers expect to ship a limited amount of gold on Saturday's steamer. Gold exports this week, however, are apt to be heavily offset by receipts of gold at Pacific coast points and by certain gains which the banks are believed to have made in the course of their operations with the interior. The minimum rate of discount of the Bank of England remains unchanged today, but the weekly statement showed a decrease of £783,000 in the reserves and £470,875 in bullion. By the contraction in loans the banks maintained its portion in reserves to liability at 46.44 per cent as compared with 45.61 per cent last week, and 44.61 per cent in the corresponding week of last year.

The Car Famine.

One may easily believe that the apprehension of industrial interests, particularly of iron and steel manufacturers, over the lack of adequate transportation facilities is far greater than the public at large has imagined. The action of the Pennsylvania railroad in placing an order for freight cars to the amount of $10,000,000 is a sufficient proof that the larger transportation systems will lose no time in providing against a repetition of present conditions; while the leading iron manufacturers whose finished products are rapidly piling up for want of freight cars, and whose plants in some instances are on the verge of shutting down for want of raw materials which the railroad companies are unable to transport, with the exclusive reference to the iron trade, Rogers, Brown & Co. passed the following comment:

"It is difficult to estimate the effect of a car famine upon furnace production. A dozen furnaces of large capacity are banked in the central west and others will have to follow soon if relief is not had; but on the other hand, the operators in the coal boundries have been restricted, though consumption has been cut down as much as production."

There is always more or less talk of a car famine during the autumn season, but hitherto it has proved unfounded to more than the inevitable complaints of those who felt that their demands were not being satisfied as promptly as they should be. In the present extremity the railroad companies are utterly unable to give assurances of immediate relief. The American Locomotive Company and several car manufacturing concerns are fairly overwhelmed with orders, and their plants, almost without exception, are still at work upon contracts placed several months ago.

Tin Opposition Not Eager to Sell.

It is understood that the American Tin Plate Company is negotiating for the purchase of certain properties owned by the new National Tin Plate Corporation, which was incorporated in New Jersey last week with a nominal capital of $125,000. The principal interests concerned are very reticent in the matter, and there is no way to determine how far and to what success negotiations have progressed, but it may be said on reliable authority that the gentlemen identified with the International Tin Plate Corporation are not eager to sell out to the combine. They have formulated plans for the organization of an independent company, to be capitalized at something like $15,000,000. Only a few of the interests connected with this venture have revealed themselves. Two of them are T. V. Allen of Bridgeport, Conn., and Herbert H. Andrew, an iron manufacturer of Sheffield, England. It is also said Lord Beresford is interested in the property. A representative of the International Tin Plate Corporation said today the patents it controls embrace a process for manufacturing a better grade of tin plate at a less cost than can be done by means of the established process used by the American Tin Plate Company. Final tests of the new process are under way in Pittsburgh, and upon the results of this demonstration will depend, perhaps, the future of the negotiations referred to.

NEWS FROM THE MINES.

Latest Finds in Gold, Silver, Copper and Other Metals in the Far Western States.

(By Private Wire to The Pittsburgh Gazette.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—A third interest in the Continental group in Northern Idaho has been sold to Duluth people on a basis of $25,000.

In an open cut on the Colorado Boss, at Cripple Creek, an immense body of ore assaying $50 a ton has been uncovered at grass roots. The rock shows free gold and sylvanite.

The Majestic Company is shipping high grade ore from the C. K. group, near Milford, Utah. Part of it runs 40 per cent copper, with some gold and silver.

Several large companies have been organized to drill for oil in Gunnison county, Col. The territory already acquired embraces an area of 50 square miles, abounding in good petroleum indications.

There is great activity in the Meadows district, east of Grants Pass, Ore., over the discovery of mercury in paying quantities. From a small hole in one claim $4,000 worth of cinnabar was removed. The ore ranks with the best of that found on the Pacific coast.

Virginia, Nev., reports the prospecting of the ground owned by Comstock companies upon the Brunswick lode will begin about the middle of December.

At Clear creek, a few miles from where the river empties into the Sacramento, Cal., the gravel beds are to be scientifically prospected for gold. If the test is successful a modern dredger with a large capacity will be installed.

Over $17,000 was returned from 1,000 tons of ore from the Bagdad mines at Ludlow, Ariz., just milled at Barstow.

A rich gold strike is reported in the Aguinaldo, in Sonora, Mex., which was recently bonded to a French syndicate. The ore, which assays $2,000 to the ton, was struck at a depth of 75 feet.

Foreign Bourses.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—Money was in strong demand to-day. The uncertainty as to the future made discounts firmer. Business on the stock exchange improved. There was little feature, apart from the rise in Americans, the approach of the settlement and the Saturday closing checking inclination for fresh engagements. Consols and home rails were firm. Americans opened firm at about parity, influenced by the reported Northern Pacific settlement and the result of the New York election. The transactions were chiefly professional. There was no apparent public buying. After fluctuating, prices closed at about the best of the day. Grand Trunks, advanced in sympathy. The consols call of nominally £9,000,000 has been reduced to £3,560,000, as £5,440,000 has been paid under discount. Paris cheque is 25.11; Berlin, 20.41¼. Gold to the amount of £113,000 has gone out to South America. The board of trade returns for October show a big decline in imports. Raw cotton is waiting the crop news, and American shipments of corn declined in favor of Argentina.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 7.—Business on the bourse today was irregular and prices had a tendency to be weak. Rumors regarding the suggested general strike caused realizations. The transactions were not numerous. The closing was calm. Internationals were undecided. Rio Tintos were heavy, owing to the Amalgamated shares not being supported. Kaffirs and De Beers opened heavy, but improved at the close. The private rate of discount is unchanged at 2 15-16 per cent.

BERLIN, Nov. 7.—Business on the bourse today was extremely quiet and prices were irregular. Mines were in better demand during the early part of the day, but closed easier. Navigation shares reacted rather sharply on liquidations. Americans were dull. Canadian Pacifics advanced.

BIG DAY FOR WALL STREET

Nearly a Million and a Quarter Shares Changed Hands Yesterday.

SUSPICIOUS OF NORTHERN PACIFIC

Buyers in Doubt as to the N. P. Settlement, but It Is Generally Conceded That the Terms Have Been Decided on.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—To-day's stock market was much broader and diversified than that of yesterday, and the aggregate dealings rose well above yesterday's to near 1,250,000 shares. There was enormous realizing in the stocks which led the advance yesterday, especially in Union Pacific and St. Paul, which ruled below yesterday's closing level practically all day, falling at one time 1⅝ for St. Paul and 1¼ for Union Pacific. The heaviness of Northern Pacific preferred, which fell 1⅝, on comparatively light transactions, taken in connection with the reaction in the two stocks previously named, it would be supposed might indicate doubt as to the Northern Pacific settlement, the more so as no authorized statement of the terms of the settlement or even a date of actual consummation can be had from any source. The conviction, however, remains strong in speculative circles that the agreement is in fact perfected, although nothing on the subject but acquiescent smiles or vague intimations can be had from insiders. The corroboration offered by the tape is considered conclusive, and also that Union Pacific and St. Paul are to benefit substantially by the agreement, just how in the case of the latter stock is not even intimated. The selling of those stocks, therefore, was accepted as due to mere realizing of speculative profits, while the market continued to advance with vigor at other points. The forcing to cover of the bear interest in some of the specialties recently under pressure was an important influence in the advance, conspicuously so in Amalgamated Copper, Sugar and Peoples Gas.

Among the transcontinental stocks the Atchisons alone continued the advance with any great show of energy. The common rose at one time 2⅜ and Southern Pacific got 1¼ over yesterday, but last fell off on realizing. The rise of 3¼ in New York Central was a feature of the market, and lifted with it a number of the junior Vanderbilts. Lately current rumors of a pending concentration of profits were influential in connection with the movement. The statement of October earnings for New York Central, showing an increase of 17 per cent over those of last October, was also an influence. A number of elements contributed to the buoyancy for the fourth week in October emphasized the impression caused by yesterday's statements. The coal carrying roads, both in hard and soft coal territory, were in notable demand and show gains of 1 to 2 points. The United States Steel stocks developed strength at gains of a point for the common and 1⅝ for the preferred on glowing accounts of the activity in the trade. There were many rumors hinting of a determination on the part of the insiders to advance these stocks, but the rise met with very heavy realizing, and the gains were largely wiped out. The movement to realize became very general before the close and the advances were curtailed in all points and entirely wiped out in a few cases. The payments of the sub-treasury in redemption of bonds and for the deposit of Australian and Klondike gold at Pacific coast points are so far offsetting the drain on other accounts that the money question is kept in abeyance. The very substantial recuperation for the week disclosed by the Bank of France also served to relieve apprehension over money affairs, as Paris has been the real center of attraction working toward depletion of gold supplies at other points. The small increase of the bank's gold supply for the week has been supplemented by a decrease of over $49,000,000 in bills discounted and a contraction of nearly $36,000,000 in its outstanding note circulation. The market closed easy under the influence of realizing.

The railroad bond market was very active, but the reaction in Union Pacific convertible bonds made an otherwise strong market irregular. Total sales par value, $6,810,000.

United States bonds were all unchanged on the last call.

New York Trial for Capt. Carter.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—Oberlin M. Carter, formerly a captain in the United States corps of engineers, and now a military prisoner at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., has been informed that there is to be a hearing of his case before Judge Kohlsaat in the United States circuit court in this city. This is the result of a suit brought by the government to recover $722,582 which Carter embezzled.

Stomachs That Won't Work,

That Retain the Food and Refuse to Digest It, Make the Head Heavy and the Nerves Weak, Need Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

There is a cure for dyspepsia. Sufferers who have tried noxious nostrums will probably be skeptical but skepticism vanishes when Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are tried. Whether the trouble is dyspepsia of long standing, or merely a simple case of indigestion, relief is prompt and pronounced. The less the trouble the fewer tablets need be taken.

Heaviness after eating, sour stomach, as indicated by belching, fatigue with slight exertion or with no exertion at all, disturbed sleep, nervousness, constipation, depression, "blues," these things can commonly be set down as symptoms of dyspepsia. And dyspepsia is merely indigestion in an aggravated form.

By promoting perfect digestion, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets produce strong nerves, restful, refreshing sleep, pure blood and good, sound healthy flesh. They make the skin clear, the eyes bright, the mind cheerful.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are a medicine and more than a medicine. They digest the food and make it easy of assimilation, and they relieve the inflamed, diseased condition of the membraneous linings and the glands of the stomach and bowels. They help the digestive organs over the hard places, and put them into a healthy, active condition. They effect a quick and permanent change of habits. They digest the proper food and act upon the other kind in such a way as to make it pass off quickly and harmlessly. You may eat and drink what you like, when you like, and as much as you like if you take a tablet afterwards.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by all druggists at 50 cents for full size package.

Send to F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich., for little book on stomach diseases, mailed free.

Local Stocks Active but Tone Was Irregular

WINDOW GLASS WAS BOOMED

The Common Stock Advanced on Heavy Demand from Inside Houses.

U. S. STEEL ISSUES WERE STRONG AND ACTIVE

Electric Seconds Advanced 1 1-4, but Westinghouse Airbrake Again Broke 1 1-2 — Common Coolers Active and Higher.

As a general proposition the market on the Pittsburgh stock exchange yesterday was active and decidedly bullish, but a close inspection of the details shows that the tone was quite irregular. The total sales were over 7,500 shares of stock divided among 17 different securities. Of this number nine advanced from ¼ to 2¼, while only four declined from ¼ to 1⅛, the remaining four being unchanged. The highest advance, 2¼, was scored by the First National bank of Allegheny, 20 shares of which sold at 127¼. The last sale of this stock was in 1899 at 125, but during the boom days of last spring the bid price advanced to 134, so that yesterday's sale was really a decline of 6½ points, instead of an advance.

The feature of the day was chiefly in American Window Glass common, which was bought almost exclusively by a firm strongly identified with insiders. All told 1,250 shares changed hands, the price opening at 58¾ and closing at 59, a gain of 1⅛ for the day. After the final sale at 59, 59¼ was bid for considerable more stock, but none offered under 59¾. The offered was not traded in but was firm at 90 bid, no offers.

The steel stocks were very strong and quite active. United States Steel common being particularly so. Of this heavily 300 shares sold and it closed strong at 43, a gain of $1. The preferred made a similar advance at 92¼, but was quite dull, only 150 shares selling and Crucible Steel sold 600 shares at 23, the last price and was firm. Nearly 400 of the preferred went at 84¼@84¾, closing firmer at 84½, a gain of ⅜. At the windup 84¼ was bid for 500 shares. Two of the Westinghouse stocks afforded surprises. Electric seconds developed a great deal of strength and closed with a gain of 1¼ at 71¼, on sales of 618 shares. After the last trade, however, the stock declined to 71 asked, with only 70¾ bid. The course of Westinghouse Airbrake is puzzling everybody. This stock has been unusually active during the week and yesterday sold 200 shares, breaking 1½ to 167, a loss of $3 since last Saturday and of $10 since the preceding week. It is undeniably worth and nobody outside the management knows why it is so. There are all kinds of rumors, but none of them have as yet assumed much tangibility.

The coal stocks were quite active, but erratic. River common opened and closed at 13, a loss of ⅛ for the day, but in the meantime it sold freely at 12⅞. The preferred was unchanged at 45, bid, 46 asked. Pittsburgh common and preferred each sold 972 shares, an unusual coincidence. The common started at 27¼, went to 27⅝, broke to 27¼ and closed at 27⅜. A gain for the day of ⅛. The preferred started at 92¼ and went strongly to 92½. Then it broke sharply to 92 and closed weak at that price, a loss of ⅜. Ice common was also heavy and ½ lower at 16. Brewing issues showed a good deal of firmness and rallied. The other sales were unimportant. Traction and Philadelphia issues were firm, but did not sell. Mechanics National bank at 128 asked, and Fidelity Title and Trust at 459 asked, were each $1 lower. The remainder of the list was practically unchanged.

Amalgamated Copper was strong on what appeared to be covering of shorts, though no new cause out in regard to the copper situation. There are accounts of large electrical installations to be undertaken soon, and if all the work of this kind that is in progress should materialize it would apparently tend to increase the consumption of and demand for copper.

The advance noted yesterday in tomatoes is being fully maintained, and even higher figures are looked for than those ruling. Gallon apples are firm at $3 25, while peaches are quiet and unchanged. Domestic sardines are slow and easy.

Dried Fruits.

Domestic fruits are more plentiful and easier, declines having appeared in seeded Muscatels and Valencia layers. The situation on the Pacific coast is still weak and unsettled, with continued rumors of lower prices. The Spanish market is firm, with a scarcity of Malaga clusters. Currants are in active demand in primal markets, and prices are firm. There is quietness in prunes, although the call for them is quite general. This condition indicates the possibility of a further advance in the near future when stock is taken. Trade on Monday if the situation remains unchanged until that time. Eggs—Fresh, candled, doz, 29@30c; storage, 28@28½c.

Poultry.

The advance in quotations for spring chickens and old fowls is the last matter of interest in the poultry market and this advance is well established as a result of the scarcity noted, and quite readily be disposed of at top figures, while smaller and less desirable stock is not in much request, and sells at irregular prices. The leading markets are steady. Bleached cottons and colored cottonseed goods also steady. Prints in quieter request. Cloths dull and weak. Hosiery and underwear in light demand at previous prices.

Butter, Eggs and Cheese.

From all over the country come reports of a firm butter market, while fancy fresh table grades very scarce and insufficient for the demand in some places. This condition indicates the possibility of a further advance in the near future when stock is taken. Monday if the situation remains unchanged until that time. Cheese is unchanged, but is quiet, with the market easy. Eggs are strong, especially for fancy stock. Orders were pigeonholed 23 cents representing the 5 dozen case in the market.

Fruits and Produce.

An even range of prices was maintained yesterday. The market ruled firm for all lines but without excitement or especially heavy buying of any description. Carlots of potatoes brought slightly improved prices in the yards for particularly fancy stock, but other potato quotations remained unchanged, although they are expected to advance probably 5 cents a bushel inside of the next week. Radishes are in liberal receipt, and are lower, while 12c for lettuce in barrels has also declined. A few quinces are arriving, most of them poor stock, with an occasional lot of fancy, but the season is almost over. Pears are lower, being due to covering by frightened shorts on rumors of continued drought in the Santos district and on very bullish European market advices. Speculative demand from the room contingent and outside investment developed on a heavy scale following the call and prices advanced a further 5@10 points by midday, with offerings scarce. At noon a private cable from Brazil made its appearance, estimating the next Rio crop at 2,500,000 bags and the Santos crop at 4,500,000 bags, total of 7,000,000 bags, whereas as from 10,000,000 to 11,000,000 bags, the latter figure generally accepted. This cable inspired the wildest covering by shorts and heavy buying for all accounts, prices advancing rapidly until a flat rise of 90 to 95 points had been established. Foreign houses started the buying in the morning and were large purchasers all day, while investment support for outside account was also very heavy. A sharp speculative buying movement near the close, but final prices were not 50@60 points higher, with the tone steady. Sales reached the enormous total of 150,000 bags and included a number of the new crop, January at 6.45@6.80c; March at 6.60@7.15c; April at 6.95@7.20c; May at 6.75@7.30c; June at 6.85@7.35c; July at 6.95@7.50c; August at 7.10c; September at 6.95@7.50c, and December at 7.75c. Coffee—Spot Rio strong; No. 7 invoice, 7c; mild firm; Cordova, 7¼@11c. Sugar—Raw quiet; fair refining, 3¼c; centrifugal, 96 test, 3¾c; molasses sugar, 3c. Refined quiet. Rio Tintos are talked 50 owing to the continued American purchases and a big bear account in Paris.

Metals.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Tin in London advanced £1 without stimulating much demand, and finally closed but quiet at £134 17s 6d for spot and £107 10s for futures. Locally tin was without change of importance and dull at $24 70@24 75. Copper remains unchanged and quoted, both at home and abroad, closing at $16 85@17 00 for Lake Superior and $16 87½@16 62½ for casting and electrolytic at New York, and £65 15s for spot and £64 17s 6d for futures at London. Lead was dull here at $4 37½, but is 3d lower at London at £11 7s 9d. Spelter was dull at New York, closing at $4 37½, and also unchanged at London and quoted at £16 12s 6d. Domestic markets dull; pig iron warrants, $9 50@10 50; No. 1 northern foundry, $15 00@16 00; No. 2 foundry, southern, $14 00@15 00; No. 1 foundry, southern, $14 50@15 50; No. 1 foundry, southern soft, $14 50@16 00. Glasgow warrants closed at 55s and Middlesboro closed at 44s.

Contracts for Many Houses

LIBERTY VIEW GETS 43 HOMES

Contracts Awarded for Larimer Avenue Houses to Cost $85,700.

A PROPOSED PARK IN WASHINGTON PIKE

A $12,000 Residence for the Twenty-Second Ward—Demand for Property Below Wood Street. East End Exchange Deal.

A contract was awarded yesterday for the erection of 43 frame houses in Liberty View plan, Larimer avenue. E. J. Bechtel, who is handling this plan of lots, said that work on the job will begin at once and if the winter is mild it is expected that several of the houses will be finished in February. The houses will be frame and will cost $1,800 each. They will have five and six rooms each. The lots on which they are built are 25x100 feet and face in Brushton avenue, Central street, East Lemington avenue and Highland View street. This locality is building up very rapidly with tenant houses and street improvements are being made to keep pace with the building.

Mr. Bechtel also closed a contract with E. S. Morgan of Crafton for the erection of five houses in Crafton terrace to cost $8,900. The ground for these will be broken next week. Two of the houses will have eight rooms and cost $2,000 each. Three will have 10 rooms and cost $4,500 each. The lots are 40x120 feet and front in the east side of Lawson avenue, near Dinsmore avenue. Over 100 houses are now contracted for in Crafton to be done by January 1. At least 25 more contracts have been refused by builders this week. Fifteen contracts have been closed for houses there within the past few days and contractors say they already have shouldered more than they can carry.

The Union Realty Company sold for Edward W. Imhoff to Florence B. Moody the property at 1503 Denniston avenue, between Irwin and Homewood avenues, Twenty-second ward. The lot is 50x130 feet and is improved with an eleven-room brick house with all modern improvements. The consideration is $12,000.

Negotiations are pending for the purchase of 44½ acres of land along the Washington pike at a price approximating $44,500 or $1,000 an acre. The property is situated two miles south of Crafton and is owned by Mrs. A. Stewart. It is reported that a traction company is after the land as a park site. There is no traction road near there at present, but the Southern Traction Company has planned to extend its line in that direction in the spring, and it is thought they may be the intending purchasers.

During the last few days there has been a noticeable increase in inquiries for property below Wood street. A number of deals are now pending that show a tendency among buyers to bring this section of the city into prominence. These deals are for property situated in Second, Third and Fourth avenues between Ferry and Market streets. Several houses have operated to turn the attention of buyers to these streets, and among them are the new Wabash station on Liberty and Ferry streets. One house project lately announced is apartment. The recent sale of several lots in Wood and Market streets for building purposes has also added interest. A prominent downtown broker thus summed up the situation yesterday: "Within the past month the number of inquiries for this property has more than doubled. The lookers are shrewd buyers, too, who are after the property for an investment. While Fourth avenue property above Wood street is selling for $4,500 a foot there are plenty of lots within little more than a block from Wood street that can be bought for from $500 to $1,500 a foot. In two years this section will be completely transformed and these buyers are picking up the good chances."

An exchange deal was closed yesterday by Leahy Bros., East End, amounting to $8,000. By the terms of the transfer Daniel J. Martin trades to J. H. O'Donnell

NO MONOPOLY OF CUBAN CABLE

Secretary Root Denies the Big Claim of the Western Union Company.

AN OLD SPANISH GRANT IS RECOGNIZED

French Company Has Right to Operate Line to the World via Haiti—Cuba Company Has Partial Monopoly of Island Land Line.

(Special Telegram to The Pittsburgh Gazette.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 7.—Secretary Root has denied the claim of the Western Union Telegraph Company that under its alleged concession from Spain it possesses the exclusive right to transmit private messages between the United States and Cuba. The secretary has also decided that the rights of the Cuba Submarine Telegraph Company under a Spanish grant must be observed, and he has directed Gov. Wood to take measures to ascertain and maintain the statu quo ante bellum in respect to private telegrams.

Under this instruction the transmission of private messages between Havana, Batabano, Cienfuegos and Santiago do Cuba over government lines, which has hitherto been allowed, will be prohibited. All private business between these points must be handled by the Cuba Submarine Cable Company. It will be possible, however, for government lines to receive private message for transmission from Havana to Matanzas or any other points not named in the concession of the Cuba Submarine Cable Company.

The controversy over the telegram business of Cuba has involved the Western Union Telegraph Company, the International Ocean Telegraph Company, the French Cable Company and the Cuba Submarine Telegraph Company. The Western Union and the International Ocean Telegraph Companies sought to prevent any other companies from doing business in Cuba.

The French company, it has been established, has the right to operate its cable between Haiti and Santiago de Cuba and transmit by it messages received from any part of the world. An examination of the concession of the Cuba Submarine Company and a decree issued by the Spanish government, which was discovered by the department after an exhaustive search, shows that that company possesses the exclusive privilege of telegraphic communication between any two of the following points in Cuba: Havana, Batabana, Cienfuegos and Havana. This exclusive privilege is confined to private messages, and not to government business. The government lines, which were reconstructed by the American army, connect these four points and have been used by the various cable companies for the disparch of messages to the cities named.

CARRIERS AND CONSOLIDATION.

Two Questions to Be Investigated by Postal Officials.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 7.—(Special.)—Assistant Superintendent McCoy of the free delivery of mail service has gone to Western Pennsylvania to investigate the needs of the larger postoffices for more letter carriers. He will visit Pittsburgh, Allegheny, Washington (Pa.), Greensburg, Sharpsburg, Homestead, Uniontown, Beaver and other cities of the northwestern class.

Postmaster Morrow of Pittsburgh has asked for 15 additional carriers, and other postmasters have stated the needs of their offices, and upon Mr. McCoy's report the allowance will be made or refused. Assistant Superintendent Hedges of the same service will visit the same section next week, but his mission will be to investigate and to report upon the offices that should be consolidated for the betterment of the service and upon the application for additional rural delivery of mail routes.

The postoffice at Meeker, Clay county, W. Va., will be discontinued on November 15.

F. C. Knox's New Private Secretary.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 7.—(Special.)—C. O. L. Cooper, who was private secretary to Attorney General Griggs while Griggs was at the head of the department of justice, and has since Mr. Griggs' retirement filled the same place under Attorney General Knox, has resigned, and at his own request has been assigned to another position under the department of justice, one that is really a promotion for him. Mr. Cooper will be succeeded by Charles C. Long of Brooklin, Mass., a young man of excellent training for the position. The change will take effect November 15.

Settled a Delaware Feud.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 7.—The president today appointed Robert G. Houston collector of customs for the district of Delaware. The announcement of the appointment followed a visit from Representative Ball of Delaware and ended a controversy which has been prolonged for several years owing to the deadlock between the Addicks and Dupont factions.

Boys Weave Baskets.

The boys of the Point Breeze Presbyterian church have gone into a new enterprise. They are weaving baskets to be sold to raise money for missions. The girls of the congregation, not to be surpassed by their brothers, are engaged in dressing dolls and making clothes for Christmas boxes to be sent to some of the mission stations.

Dr. D. Jayne's Expectorant certainly does go directly to the root of all Throat and Lung troubles. There is abundant evidence of this in its sixty-two years' record of cures.
